Speeches At Service And Banquet Show Growth Of Organisation

The new home of the Young Men's Christian Association National Committee, a beautiful six storey re-inforced concrete building with all modern conveniences, 20 Museum Road, was dedicated yesterday with an elaborate program. The service was held on the roof garden, many men of national prominence participating, while in the evening, a banquet was held at the Great Eastern Hotel.

The program in the afternoon opened with a prayer by the Rev. A. P. Parker, who was followed by speeches of welcome given by Dr. Fong, F. Sec, chairman of the national committee and Mr. C. C. Nieh, vice-chairman.

Dr. Fong Sec, who also presided, expressed the committee's thanks to those who assisted in raising the funds for the erection of the building, including Mr. F. S. Brookman, Dr. C. T. Wang, Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Mr. Tang Shao-yi, Mr. C. C. Nish, International Committee, Y.M.C.A., Mrs. F. J. Shepard and Mr. C. M. Stimson.

Mr. Nieh traced the work of the various departments of the Y.M.C.A. and made some valuable suggestions whereby the service of the association may be best utilised by the public. "There is much work, which the Y.M.C.A. is doing which should be done by the Government, he said.

Mr. H. A. Wilbur, associate general secretary, then expressed appreciation of the committee for the work of the building committee and read a message of greeting from J. R. Mott, organiser of the Y.M.C.A. movement in China 20 years.

Judge S. K. Tachuan Loh, representing General Ho Fung-lin, the Defense Commissioner of Sunkiang and Shanghai, read a message from Gen. Ho in which the Defense Commissioner paid a high tribute to the work being done by the Y.M.C.A. for the moral, educational and physical development of China's young men.

MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT

Mr. David Z. T. Yui, general secretary, read congratulatory messages from President Hsu Shih-chang, Expresident Li Yuan-hung, Foreign Commissioner C. F. Hsu, Tuchun Li Hou-chi of Fukien, Minister Fan Yuen-lien of the Ministry of Education, Dr. W. W. Yen, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Generals Wu Pei-fu and Feng Yu-hsiang, Tuchun Yen Shih-san of Shansi, Mr. Yen Shu of Tientsin, Mr. Chow Tsze-chi of the Ministry of Finance, Tuchun Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang, Governor Chen Chiung-ming of Kwangtung and Mr. P. Frank Price of Nanking. Messages from the Y.M.C.A. in the Philippine Islands, Japan, and the Strait Settlements and the Manila Chinese Chamber of Commerce, under the chairmanship of Mr. Dee C. Chuan, were also read.

Mr. Chang Po-lin, president of the Nankai University and one of the strongest Y.M.C.A. workers in North China delivered an interesting address on the twenty years' work of the Y.M.C.A. movement in China. He termed the accomplishment as marvellous and attributed its success to the fact that it supplies what young China demands and that it is a movement welcomed by every thinking Chinese in China.

Mr. David Z. T. Yui then thanked the assembly for its support and Bishop H. J. Molony officially dedicated the new building.

Before the exercise, the guests inspected the building. Tea and refreshments were served.

An exhibition of the use of wireless telegraphy, wireless telephone, the gyroscope, the Magna Vox, portable projection machines, portable moving picture machine and the hand-power dynamo was given under the direction of Mr. C. H. Robertson, head of the lecture department.

IS MODERN BUILDING

The building, which is equipped with its own telephone system and a chain of clocks run by electricity, compares favorably with the best association headquarters in the United States.

The first floor is leased to the Chung Mei Trading Corporation and the Wha Foong Cotton Mills' town office. The second third and fourth floors are devoted to the business, physical and administrative departments, including a spacious library and a

Son Of King Edward's Sister Becomes Duke Of Schleswig-Holstein

PRINCESS Helena, widowed sister of the late King Edward of England, whose son, Albert, became recently, through the death of his cousin, chief of the German princely and ducal house of Schleswig-Holstein. In addition to the title, Albert came into possession of the great estate of Prinkenau, in Silesia; of a number of other castles and lands, of a large entailed fortune and of a perpetual annuity of $80,000, payable by the Prussian Treasury for the renunciation by the Dukes of Schleswig-Holstein of the two Duchies of Schleswig and Holstein on their incorporation into the Kingdom of Prussia.

GERMANY WILL ASK NEW TERMS, FRENCH ARE TOLD

Briand's Speech Causes Great Disquiet, Says Paris Correspondent

(French Wireless through Reuter).

Paris, April 11.—The Berlin correspondent of the Echo de Paris declares that German public opinion has not recovered from the blow caused by M. Briand's forcible words in the French Senate. In the spheres of commerce and industry the greatest disquiet is manifest, and business is in a state of absolute stagnation. In German militarists and monarchist circles the pass-word is that the Allies are to be met with a display of passive resistance.

There are certain indications, says the Petit Parisien, to show that the German Government will present to the Allies fresh proposals in regard to reparations at the end of the month.

Paris, April 11.—M. Jaspar, Belgian Minister of Foreign Affairs, speaking at a banquet at Antwerp, made an appeal to Belgian opinion in regard to the negotiations with the Allies on the subject of German reparations. He sought to know, he said, whether the Belgians had really emerged victorious from the war, or whether indirectly they would be the vanquished. The Germans, who were responsible for the war, must be made to pay reparation.

Paris, April 11.—Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, who has been inspecting the Army of Occupation, arrived at Mayence yesterday, and was received by General Degoutte, Commanding the Armies of the Rhine.

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 12.—Rumor mongers had a field day yesterday when fantastic stories circulated like wildfire about heavy British casualties sustained in the Rhineland. It was stated that two train loads of wounded soldiers injured in fighting had arrived in London via Dover and that large consignments of coffins were sent from Waterloo Station.

People in far distant centers rang up London newspaper offices which endeavored to track the reports by official enquiry and private investigation. Eventually the War Office issued a statement ascribing the myth to Bolshevik attempts to deter recruiting for the defence force.

The Minister for War described as sheer nonsense the tale that the defence force had been created to suppress a German rising or to collect the German indemnity.

FRENCH CONSUL TO ASK AWARDS FOR SHIP'S CREW

M. Wilden Will Urge Decorations For Men Of The Monteagle

LAUDS THEIR BRAVERY

One Passenger Of Ill-Fated Hsin-tien Took Pictures While Boat Went Down

A petition to the government of France, asking that decorations be awarded to the officers and crew of the liner Monteagle who went out in life-boats to rescue those on board the ill-fated Hsin-tien will be forwarded to Paris by M. Wilden, French Consul-General here. Yesterday afternoon M. Wilden visited the local offices of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services in order to express his official thanks for the heroic conduct of the Monteagle personnel in standing by to aid the Hsin-tien on April eighth.

"The behavior of the Monteagle officers and crew was extremely courageous," M. Wilden said yesterday to a CHINA PRESS representative. "We are grateful also for the heroism of the Chinese who manned the first life-boat sent out and who, although they lacked the strength to row to the Hsin-tien through the high seas, asked to be allowed to make another attempt. In presenting my memorandum to the French government, I have requested that decorations be awarded to the Chinese sailors who tried to reach the wreck, as well as to the volunteer crew of foreigners."

OWNER SEES SINKING

The special decoration which the French government awards for heroism in saving life is the Medaille de Sauvetage, issued in two classes, one gold and the other silver. Though the Hsin-tien was built in Tientsin, it was the property of the Societe Commerciale du Pacifique and therefore under French jurisdiction. M. Brossard of Brossard, Mopin et Cie, who owned an interest in the vessel, watched it sink from the deck of the Amazone on which he was a passenger. The Amazone reached the scene about an hour after the Monteagle had begun the work of rescue, but was unable to assist owing to the heavy seas.

The boy who stood on the burning deck eating peanuts by the peck or otherwise employing himself has a rival in the person of M. de Bolleve of the Shanghai Banque Industrielle de Chine, the only passenger on the Hsin-tien, who, while the vessel was sinking, calmly stood on the deck and took snapshots. With his camera strap clutched in his hand, he leaped for the first Monteagle life-boat, missed it, went under, rose again, was seized by the hair, and thus dragged aboard the life-boat, still holding to his camera.

AND THEN TOOK PICTURES

Though the films he took on board the Hsin-tien were too badly damaged by the water to be developed, the camera survived the ducking sufficiently well to produce excellent pictures of the wreck half an hour later from the deck of the Monteagle.

The sixty Chinese rescued from the Hsin-tien included its crew and several rice merchants on the way to Swatow. The foreigners rescued were M. de Bolleve and the ship's officers.

Just what caused the Hsin-tien to founder has not yet been officially determined. Trouble began the night of April seventh, when an inrush of water made it necessary to man the pumps. On the morning of the eighth, after the crew had pumped all night, the water gained such headway that the engines were put out and the Hsin-tien began to sink. About 8:00 a.m., the smoke of the Monteagle was sighted and the damaged vessel attracted attention by flying signals of distress. Witnesses say that about half an hour after the last boatload was taken off, the Hsin-tien split in two and disappeared beneath the water. The only loss of life was the drowning of four Chinese who attempted to put out a life-boat from the sinking vessel.

Failure To Get U.S. Loan Blow To Bank

Relief Workers Too In Need Of Relief; Call Out For Books

Now for some relief for the famine relief workers.

Up in the stricken areas there are a number of solitary foreign representatives of the relief organisations working day after day at the problem of distributing the available supplies among the starving populace. And at the end of the day there's nothing for the men in charge of these lonely outposts to do for relaxation from the wearing monotony of their tasks, nothing to take their minds briefly from the desolation of suffering and need by which they are surrounded.

They want books—magazines—reading matter of whatever sort you have to spare.

An appeal in this connection has come from a member of the American Red Cross China Famine Relief staff.

"We would all of us be very grateful," he writes, "for we are in most cases stationed in the interior of Shantung, one man to the station, and there is nothing like books to help a man through the long hours of solitude. I am saying long hours purposely: when the day's work is over and there is nothing for a man to do to occupy his mind, even the minutes seem like hours."

Any reading matter which is forthcoming in response to this plea should be sent to the American Red Cross China Famine Relief, care of R. B. Irving, Assistant Chief of Commissary, Ping Yuan, Shantung.

RATEPAYERS WILL MEET TOMORROW IN DOUBLE SESSION

Voters To Be Called On To Pass Important Resolutions

The annual meeting of ratepayers takes place at the Town Hall tomorrow afternoon, starting at 2. o'clock. The meeting will be preceded by an important special meeting which will be called at 1:15.

Resolutions of serious importance are to come before both sessions, to some of which some active opposition is anticipated.

The special meeting will be called upon to pass resolutions regarding a revision of the present assessment of wharfage dues and placing regulations upon the publication of printed matter. This latter resolution is a modification of the one passed by the ratepayers and rejected by the Consular Body two years ago. While it has been pruned of many of its previous provisions it has caused a good deal of anxiety among Chinese publishers. The Chinese Publishers' Guild, Chinese Publishers' Association, the Association of Chinese Newspapers and the Shanghai Publishers' Union are closing a campaign against the measure by the insertion of large advertisements in the foreign and Chinese press. The advertisements set forth arguments against the so-called press law and make appeal to the foreign ratepayers to defeat its passage.

Among foreign ratepayers there has been considerable discussion regarding the extent of the budget, a record one in the history of the Settlement, and the proposal of its authorisation is expected to bring forth some interesting argument.

An appeal is made to all ratepayers to attend the special meeting, since unless one-third of the total number of registered voters is present it will be impossible to bring the resolutions forward.

HARDING AND HUGHES PUT SKIDS UNDER SENATORS

"Bitter Enders" Brought Sharply To Bit By President

WERE BOASTFUL

Knox And Lodge Had Let It Be Known They Were Shaping Course

BOTH ON CARPET

Announced After Conference They Will Support Administration

(U. S. Navy Radio through Reuter)

Washington, April 10.—President Harding and the members of his Cabinet were tendered a dinner by the famous Gridiron Club of Washington this evening. The function constituted the traditional welcome extended every fourth year to the members of the incoming administration.

The applause which greeted Mr. Harding and his coadjutors springs from a special reason. They are ending their fifth week in office amid a triumph which is without a parallel in the recent history of the nation.

A week ago the irreconcilable element in the Senate arrogantly assumed control of American foreign policy and filled the columns of every newspaper which they could "inspire" with argument against ratification of the Treaty of Versailles. Senator Knox had just been to see the President on the subject of a separate peace with Germany. Forthwith all the Irreconcilable tom-toms in Washington began beating out a din of alleged victory. Spokesmen of the "kill-the-league-at-all-costs" party truculently declared that Mr. Harding and Secretary Hughes had practically surrendered their constitutional control of foreign policy, which was now exclusively in the keeping of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate.

The White House and State Department at first treated these boastings with contempt. Then the Irreconcilables over-played their hand. They gave out a statement that the Senate's program was not the administration's program which was about to be submitted to the world in the name of America.

In the language of the street, this "got the Administration's goat." Mr. Harding instructed Mr. Hughes to summon Senators Lodge and Knox to the State Department. They marched up like obedient school-boys, and when the conference with the square-jawed secretary had ended, Senator Knox issued a statement that he would no longer "insist" on an immediate peace with Germany, but would "assist any program the Administration preferred." What this means is that Mr. Harding and Mr. Hughes have the bombastic Senator of a week ago "eating out of the Administration's hand."

The President, ably and energetically supported by Mr. Hughes and Mr. Hoover in particular, but commanding the whole-hearted backing of the entire Cabinet, is now in indisputable command of the situation. He never really lost command of it. What has happened is that those who thought they could assume command if they made sufficient noise, find themselves outside the breast-works.

That is why the leading men of the nation gathered at the Gridiron Club this evening and showered greetings on President Harding and his Cabinet as they entered the banquet hall.

Ex-Kaiserin To Be Buried At Potsdam

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 11.—With the death of the ex-Kaiserin disappears the most pathetic figure of the Hohenzollerns. As a devoted consort, she remained faithful to the last to the ex-Kaiser.

She had been failing in health ever since she joined him in exile. A prey to fears of poisoning, aerial attacks and other perils, her end had so long been expected that the Duchess of Brunswick went to Germany in February to arrange about the funeral.

She finally succumbed to a heart attack. It is reported from Doorn that the ex-Kaiserin will be buried at Potsdam.

Explorer's Wife's Greatest Fear Is That Her Supply Of Hairpins Will Run Short

Mrs. Andrews Intends To Take Thousands With Her In Trip To Thibet, But She Still Remembers Disastrous Previous Experience

BY ELSIE McCORMICK

THERE is just one thing that is worrying Mrs. Roy Chapman Andrews as she looks forward to a pioneer tour over the rolling plains of Western Mongolia, into the dim, dusty corners of Chinese Turkestan and across the white mountains of Thibet. And the source of worry is not icy passes or prowling tigers or Moslem fanatics.

It's hairpins.

"I'm taking boxes and boxes and boxes, but I know I won't have enough to last," Mrs. Andrews said today.

Mrs. Andrews, small, pretty and dainty, is just the sort who would like to look her best even if she isn't likely to see any strangers except the remains of a primitive gentleman who departed this life about 100,000 B. C.

Two years ago, when she took a jaunt into Mongolia with her husband, Mrs. Andrews thought that she had brought enough hairpins to last through the journey. But up on the high plateau the winds blow strong and before she realised it the precious hairpins were scattered like autumn leaves across the Land of Grass. She was reduced at last to two, which she guarded as if they were solid gold, studded in diamonds. But despite her vigilance, they too went the way of the others and Mrs. Andrews returned to civilisation with her hair tied up by a shoe-string.

REFUSES TO BOB

Despite the tyrannies of the hair-pin, however, Mrs. Andrews refuses steadfastly to bob. She is willing to reduce her wardrobe to a pair of khaki trousers and some flannel shirts, and to do without frills or furbelows for six months at a time, but her hair is going to stay where nature put it.

Another sample of the trials faced by a woman explorer occurred in Mongolia when their Ford car broke down about 700 miles from the nearest repair station and Mrs. Andrews' precious stock of cold cream was commandeered to supply the grease cups. As the machine probably will be supplanted by yaks, camels, and horses on the journey now in prospect, Mrs. Andrews hopes that her boxes of cold cream will not be fed to an unappreciative Ford, which has no complexion worth considering anyway.

Though the exploring party is going in search of the primitive man, there is no danger of them turning into primitive men themselves,—at least not while Mrs. Andrews is along to spread a white table cloth in Mongolia and insist on napkins with every meal in Thibet. On this point Mr. Andrews agrees with his capable wife.

GOOD FOR MORALE

"Sitting down to a meal in Central Asia with a white table-cloth has the same effect on the morale as shaving in the trenches," Mr. Andrews said. "Therefore, if it is humanly possible, we shall have napkins and table-cloths with every meal, whether we are guests of the Grand Lama or on the outskirts of a mean Thibetan village. We live close enough to the ground on these trips without foregoing any of the little niceties of life that are in our power to secure. We had decent table linen during our last trip through Yunnan, Burma, and the Thibetan borderland, so there is no reason why we can't have it on this longer journey."

It is the same principle of keeping up the morale that causes Mrs. Andrews to carry one or two pretty gowns in her kit, even if she has no opportunity to wear them.

The intrepid little explorer claims wanderlust as a family bequest. Her father, Colonel H. D. Borup, saw long service in the army and later held the post of military attache in half a dozen European capitals. Mrs. Andrews, who was born in Paris, has spent the greater part of her life traveling outside the United States. Her brother, George Borup, accompanied Admiral Peary in his dash for the North Pole.

LIVES OUTDOOR LIFE

From childhood Mrs. Andrews has lived an outdoor life, playing tennis and golf, hiking over mountains, and riding over all sorts and conditions of country on horseback. Her interest in athletic was an unconscious preparation for her later journeys into lands which the primitive man vacated early and to which few of his descendants have been tempted to return.

"She not only stands fatigue better than most men, but she takes the bad with the good and enjoys it all," said her husband. "The wetter and wearier we are the more cheerful she becomes. That is the real test of a traveler. A person can be forgiven for grumbling when things go well, but the person who complains when they go badly spoils the morale of the party."

Though a Chinese cook will have charge of the cuisine on the march, Mrs. Andrews intends to keep a friendly eye on him and occasionally add a snack herself that will be really "Home-made," even if the making takes place on a Thibetan mountainside. Except for tinned milk and butter, the party intends to take no canned goods. Staples, such as flour, tea, bacon, sugar, rice, and cornmeal will be packed with the equipment, but for the rest of the menu the party will depend on its guns. The pilgrimage into Central Asia will be strictly dry, though Mr. Andrews will see to it that there will be enough tobacco on hand to save him from the unpleasantness of the native varieties.

SHE WILL TAKE PICTURES

Good sportsman as she is, Mrs. Andrews is not accompanying the party merely to prove that women are able to endure the hardships faced by men who poke into forgotten corners of the

MINE STRIKE IN ENGLAND IS NEAR END, REDS FOILED

Firm Stand Of Government Causes Leaders To Change Minds

PRICE TO DROP

General Reduction Of Wages Expected To Lower Living Costs

NATION GRATIFIED

Communists Bitterly Disappointed In Failure Of Walkout To Materialize

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 11.—The fact that the miners have now agreed to meet the owners is regarded as positive evidence that the strike is certain to be settled. There may be momentary setbacks but the ultimate issue is regarded in competent quarters as beyond question. The compromise arranged on Saturday is hailed with intense satisfaction by the whole country and explanation of it is sought in various causes. The refusal of the men to pump the mines alienated the sympathy of the public, and furthermore, whereas the revolutionary section apparently thought that the strike would be general, a division once again manifested itself in its ranks. The Railwaymen's and Transport Workers' Unions found that only half the men would respond and that the strike would inevitably fail.

There are also clear indications that the preparations of the Government, particularly the Emergency Powers Act, the movements of troops and ships and the extraordinary response of the public to the appeal for voluntary aid strongly influenced the promoters of the strike and turned the scale against persistence in their uncompromising attitude.

Government circles are convinced that the general strike, if it had taken place would not have lasted forty-eight hours, nor would anyone have been short of necessaries. The effect of the eventual resumption of work at lower wages is expected to produce an immediate fall in the cost of living with proportionate improvements in the value of wages. It is anticipated that such a settlement will be the turning point in the trade depression.

NO LOSS OF LIFE

Throughout the strike there has been no loss of human life and the Communists, who hoped to reap a harvest, realise the insignificance of their influence among the British working class whose sturdy common sense has once again re-asserted itself. The intimation of the Government that it is prepared to grant monetary assistance to tide over the wage difficulty in the unproductive districts has greatly eased the situation.

Forty pits have been completely flooded, according to a statement made by Mr. Bridgeman, Secretary for Mines, in the House of Commons today. He said it was impossible to forecast how many would again be workable, as there were economic considerations involved besides those of practicability.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain, in moving a formal address of thanks to His Majesty for his message relating to the Proclamation calling out the reserve forces, stated that the Miners' Federation's instructions regarding non-interference with the pumping had generally been followed. He feared that the negotiations would take a considerable time, and that they would be most difficult. "We must not flatter ourselves that we are out of danger," he said, pointing out that although the threat of extension of the dispute to the whole transport industry had been suspended, it had not been withdrawn. It was therefore necessary, he declared, to continue taking precautions; and the community must show that if its existence was attacked, it was able to protect itself.

EAGER FOR SETTLEMENT

Replying to Labor cries of "No provocative language," Mr. Chamberlain said that he was most anxious that nothing should be said which would make a fair and honorable settlement impossible. He then urged the adjournment of the discussion.

The debate was adjourned until tomorrow.

London, April 11.—When the coal-owners and the Miners' Executive met at the Board of Trade this morning, the Prime Minister presided, made the opening speech and then departed.

Sir Robert Horne, Chancellor of the Exchequer, supported by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, President of the Board of Trade, Mr. Bridgeman, Secretary for Mines, and Mr. Brace, took charge of the Conference.

Mr. Brace, formerly President of the South Wales Miners' Federation, is now Labor Advisor to the Ministry of Mines, and met his colleagues for the first time since his appointment to that post.

The Conference adjourned after sitting an hour, until this afternoon. It is believed that both parties are considering the Government's proposals relating to a grant of financial assistance, and it is expected that the negotiations will last some time after today.

Mr. Lloyd George, in the course of his address, mentioned above, dwelt on the formidable task ahead of all. He said that there was no doubt of an early and satisfactory conclusion if there were the same eagerness to share the losses as there was to share the profits.

SLUMP IN TRADE

He referred to the unprecedented slump in the export trade, owing to the practical closing of markets on the Continent and in South America.

The Government, he said, was resolved not to make the taxpayer maintain profits, and wages. It was for the coal-owners and miners to submit a scheme adjusting these to the hard economic conditions. The former must justify the extent of their reductions in wages, and the miners must submit counter-proposals.

He concluded with the suggestion that both sides should appoint a small body, to report to the full conference.

After the Conference had adjourned this evening, a member of the Miners' Executive declared that, as the result of the first day's negotiations, the position was not unsatisfactory.

It is learned, however, that the Conference did not get to grips with the fundamental questions.

Both parties, by the Prime Minister's wish, will meet him separately tomorrow morning.

London, April 12.—There is much criticism of the inopportune publication last night of the Triple Alliance's manifesto declaring that a stoppage of work by the railwaymen and transport workers would begin unless an offer were made to the miners which the Triple Alliance would feel justified in recommending them to accept, stating that the owners' offer fixes the standard at fifty percent below the cost of living and accusing the Government of not being an impartial arbitrator but an active partisan.

London, April 12.—A supplementary army estimate which was issued yesterday provides for an additional 300,000 men for the army and 10,000 for the Air Force in consequence of the proclamations regarding the calling up of the reserves, the extension of the service and enlistment in the defence force.

The original army estimate was for 341,000 men. Hence the strength of the army has been raised to 641,000 men.

Steamer Wenatchee Sails From Seattle

Cable advice has been received by the Admiral Line from their head office in Seattle, stating that the s.s. Wenatchee sailed from that port April 9, for Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila, with a large passenger list. She has also a full load of cargo.

Passengers on board include the following: Capt. Robert Dollar, of the Robert Dollar Company; Major General Leonard Wood and staff; Ex Governor W. Cameron Forbes, of the Philippine Islands; Roy Hadley, Seattle Chamber of Commerce; Wm. Anderson, Seattle Chamber of Commerce; David Rodgers, noted shipbuilder. Wm. Nolting, auditor, Philippine Islands; Chester Thorne, Capitalist and banker, Vice President Pacific-Alaska Navigation Company, Director Pacific Steamship Company; Wm. Cahill, Douglas Fir Export Company; Capt. J. S. Gibson, Washington Stevedoring Company Seattle.

TREASURY BILLS

London, April 12.—A hopeful sign of returning financial stability is given in an announcement that the Government will revert to the pre-war system of offering Treasury bills weekly by tender instead of at fixed rates, as has been the case for the past four years.

President Harding Talks To Cuban Executive By Phone

(Reuter's Service)

London, April 12.—Enormous strides in long-distance telephony by wire and cable were revealed in the course of a demonstration given in Washington yesterday, when President Harding conversed with the President of Cuba, after which a succession of conversations was engaged in with 26 towns, the remotest being in Cuba. Although the voice was automatically relayed at intermediate stations, the listeners had not the slightest difficulty in hearing.

The organiser of the scheme laid stress on the unimaginable political consequences likely to arise from this new development for the British Empire, pointing out that, by the use of this equipment, London would be enabled to keep in direct communication with Cape Town and Calcutta, and even with Hongkong, Shanghai and Peking, via Calcutta.

world. Her art as a photographer and talent as a colorist makes her extremely valuable member of the group. The photographs she snapped during the long journey into the Thibetan borderland five years ago have thrown new light on the scenery and customs of that remote country. Colonel Borup her father, was also a camera enthusiast, and while Mrs. Andrews was still very young, she had made a reputation for herself as a color photographer in France and Italy, later studying the subject in Berlin.

A craving for adventure has led men and women in Shanghai to appeal for a chance to accompany the party Mr. Andrews steadfastly denies that there will be any adventure.

"Adventures are a mark of incompetence," said Mr. Andrews. "The person who has lots of adventures is the amateur traveler who doesn't know enough to prepare for emergencies and who takes unnecessary risks. We expect to be too busy to have any thrilling experiences. The insurance company is charging me a premium of $20 per thousand higher than the average individual and refuses to grant me a policy of more than $5,000 even at that. But then I just missed being killed by a falling icicle the day I left New York. We expect to feel quite as safe in Thibet as we ever did at home."

But despite Mr. Andrews' denials, no mere woman can be convinced that there is a lack of adventure in running the risk of losing her last hair-pin two months' journey from the nearest dry goods store.

Lockwood, and others.

BANQUET IS HELD

The wonderful work accomplished by John R. Mott, the noted Y.M.C.A. leader in Russia, especially his successful efforts in the reorganisation of the church after the revolution was graphically told by Mr. Charles R. Crane, United States Minister to China, at the banquet held in honor of the dedication of the new building at the Great Eastern Hotel last night, Mr. H. Kung, Financial Commissioner of Shansi, interpreted Mr. Crane's speech. Dr. C. T. Wang presided.

Mr. C. F. Hsu, Special Commissioner of Foreign Affairs of Kiangsu, was the other principal speaker of the evening. Mr. David Z. T. Yui, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. expressed the appreciation of the committee for the support given to Y.M.C.A. work by the speakers and other guests present.

Dr. Wang in his remarks recalled the excellent service rendered by both Mr. Mott and Mr. Brockman in the early days of the movement and paid a high tribute to the wisdom of these gentlemen in engendering active co-operation among the Chinese and foreign workers and in utilising the best of the Chinese element.

CONCENTRATES WORK

The existence of the National Committee concentrates the work of the movement and is in accord with the principle laid down by his predecessors. Dr. Wang said. It concentrates the work of the 31 city, 174 school and several more vocational Y.M.C.A.'s throughout China. He was glad to be able to announce that the Chinese Y.M.C.A., out of this spirit of co-operation, is today not content to be assisted by, but is assisting foreign Y.M.C.A.'s in their enterprises. He quoted the instance of the drive three years ago when China raised $1,400,000 for war work in Europe in connection with the Y.M.C.A. movement.

Minister Crane told of his recommendation of Mr. Mott to serve on the Russian Commission to investigate the conditions of the country after the revolution sent out by President Wilson, Dr. Mott's influence with the church and the subsequent appreciation shown by the Russian leaders of his work among them. He said that no one in the United States could have carried out the mission so successfully and that his work should inspire all the Y.M.C.A. workers in the world.

COMMISSIONER HSU'S SPEECH

Commissioner Hsu in his speech made use of the old Chinese congratulatory message "May your work advance like a rising Sun." The record of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Hsu said had shown that much had already been accomplished in the development of Chinese young men morally, educationally and physically. But the dedication yesterday could be likened as the appearance of the Sun in the morning with its brilliant rays of enlightenment and wisdom and Christian ideals, by which the work is to be profited.

Commissioner Hsu pointed out that there are two civilising influences which the Y.M.C.A. can still accomplish much in aiding the people of China although it has already done wonders. These are the promotion of universal education and the uplift of the moral standard of the people.

Although provisions have somewhat been made by the Chinese for the education of the high and the middle classes, their efforts are feeble and are insufficient to give universal education to themselves. The Y.M.C.A. is organising schools for the workmen, the business men and the poor. It will assist greatly the wide spreading of this civilising influence.

Morality in China today is declining, Mr. Hsu said, because people, in their hatred for everything old, have ignored the beautiful moral principles laid down by the sages of the past. The result is that they have no religion and hence no morality. The Y.M.C.A. with its Christian ideals supplies the mental development which is essential to the uplift of the people.

Over 100 prominent foreigners and Chinese attended the banquet. A quartette, consisting of Messrs. G. H. James, C. D. Giauque, W. W. Peters and George A. Fitch, gave several songs with an accompaniment of Mr. G. Tewksbury.

VETERAN CAPTAIN DIES AT HONGKONG

G. Edie, Old Timer In Shipping Circles, Succumbs To Pneumonia

Another veteran of China shipping life passed away on Saturday, April 9th, when Captain G. Edie, aged 56, after more than 25 years of service with prominent Far Eastern shipping firms, died at Hongkong after a short illness of pneumonia.

Captain Edie until recently commanded the Butterfield and Swire steamer Yingchow, plying between Shanghai and Hongkong. He had but recently left this port to take command of the new B. and S. steamer Szechuen at Hongkong, when sickness overtook him. The captain was stricken first on the new boat which he had just taken over. He was removed to the Hongkong hospital where he died.

Previous to his service on the Yingchow Capt. Edie served on the Australian liners of the B. and S. company, between Hongkong and Australian ports. During the War he commanded naval transports from the B. and S. service. He was captain of the Steamer Anhui, which, while in transport work, was torpedoed off the coast of Palestine.

Captain Edie was a well known and popular man in Shanghai. He was an old hand in China shipping circles, and was on the point of retiring when taken ill. He had been home to England during the past season, and had but returned to the Orient for his final stretch of service before retiring. He was a member of the Shanghai Merchant Services Club, the China Coast Officers Guild, and other Far Eastern shipping organisations.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse and silver lace, with a train faced in pink georgette and a tulle veil. Her four bridesmaids, Misses Vera, Jean, and Stella Hoerter, and Miss Billie Coutts, wore gowns of pink charmeuse and net.

Master John Wilkinson, dressed as a midshipman, carried the bride's train.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Hoerter home, 146 Bubbling Well Road. The honeymoon wil be spent upcountry.

Motors And Their Control Discussed By Local Engineers

At the meeting of the Engineering Society of China yesterday a paper on "Motors and their Control" was presented by H. B. Lane. The paper was devoted to a brief outline of the various types of motors now in general use and to draw attention to some of the principal differences in the design of motors as used in Europe and in America.

The different systems of distribution of electric energy used in Europe and in America have led to differences in the application and use of motors, he said.

The paper also discussed some of the differences between European and American systems of electrical distribution and contrasted the relative advantages and disadvantages of each. In this connection the author discussed briefly the system of distribution used in the International Settlement in Shanghai, which is modelled after European practice.

The membership of the Society includes engineers who are divided in their opinion as to which system is the best, and the paper was intended to draw attention to both systems.

An interesting discussion followed the delivery of the paper.

Paul Rader, Evangelist Is Coming To Shanghai

REV. PAUL RADER

Paul Rader, the noted evangelist and pastor of Dr. D. L. Moody's church in Chicago, who has been touring the mission fields of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, of which society he is president, will arrive in Shanghai from the South on April 25, and will sail for home from this port April 30.

The Rev. Rader had been expected to hold one or more public meetings in this city, but because of a recent attack of pneumonia, and the disrupting of his itinerary, and a consequent weakened state of health, these meetings have been cancelled. Delegates from Central and Western China will meet the Rev. Rader on his arrival in Shanghai.

Rev. Rader is one of the foremost evangelists of the present time. Selected as pastor of the famous new Moody church in Chicago, he increased its attendance to such proportions that it soon became necessary to rebuild the edifice so as to give a seating capacity of over 5,000 people. Besides serving as pastor of this progressive church, Rev. Rader has been taxed to his utmost by calls to preach and lecture at various conventions held throughout the United States and Canada.

ON WORLD TOUR

He is reaching Shanghai on the return portion of a tour of Palestine, Egypt, India, Annam, and South China, where he has visited the missions of the Missionary Alliance, and met its delegates. His itinerary provided for an earlier arrival in Shanghai so as to allow time for public meetings but his sickness and the consequent delay, together with the calling of the Annual Council of the Missionary Alliance in New York City at an early date, has precluded any meetings here.

In discussing the rehabilitation of Palestine, in an article in the Alliance Weekly, of February 19, Rev. Rader spoke first and often of the spirit prompting the young Jew returning to the land of Abraham. "I made up my mind to like it before I came," one young American Jew answered the pastor when questioned. This was the motto and the spirit to be admired, the pastor, wrote.

Palestine as the "Land of Promise" was the general theme of the article. The return of the Jews was emphasised as the fulfillment of the predictions of the Jews of Bible times. "They are coming home" he wrote, "But their home is still occupied by strangers."

"Now, for the first time since Ezra's and Nehemiah's time, some 400 years before Christ, Rev. Rader writes, a Jew sits in the palace built by the Kaiser, as governor and ruler of Palestine."

The promises of the Allies in their after-war mandatory proclamations, to watch over the interests of Palestine so as to insure a peaceful and prosperous development, are recalled, and the gradual establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jewish People is predicted.

God's covenant to Abraham concerning Palestine, was quoted: "I will give unto thee and to thy seed after thee the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan for an everlasting possession, and I will be their God."

These covenants, Rev. Rader says, must point the way to the wise, to Palestine's future.

Japan Undecided On Mandate Issue

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, April 11.—The consensus of opinion of all shades concerning the American Government's Note on the subject of mandates, which has occasioned considerable surprise to thinkers here, is that America must define her position as regards the Peace Treaty before questioning the stipulations to which America's chief executive assented.

The Senate's failure to ratify the Peace Treaty is regarded here as purely a national matter, which does not concern the other Powers and cannot affect the enforcement of the terms of a recognised international agreement.

No definite development from the present situation is expected, because Japan is unable to decide her position in regard to Yap, which, as a result of the Treaty, cannot, it is held, be called in question by any Power until America either formally withdraws from the signatories of the Treaty or dissociates herself from the result of the work of the Peace Conference.

Washington, April 11.—It is understood that Great Britain and France have replied to the note regarding the mandate over the Island of Yap. Great Britain's reply is stated to be of a preliminary nature.

French Credited With Breaking Up Karl's Escapade

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, April 8 (delayed).—A semi-official Czecho-Slovak paper commenting upon the escapade of the ex-Emperor Karl, credits the French Government with having been instrumental in winding up a dangerous situation. The Jugo-Slav papers express similar views, while M. Briand's firm stand with regard to the Silesian question is a source of great satisfaction to the Polish press.

Such results are felt to constitute a vindication of the fruitful policy of Franco-British co-operation in Central Europe.

CHITA BITTERLY ARRAIGNS JAPS FOR OCCUPATION

Note Calls Attention To Promises To Withdraw Troops From Siberia

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, April 12.—The Rosta and Dalta agencies circulate under date Chita, April 11, the text of the notes which M. Krasnochekoff, the head of the Far Eastern Republic, has forwarded to Japan and America. The note to the former consists mainly of a statement by the Chita Constituent Assembly recapitulating the Japanese declaration to the Russian people in 1918 regarding the sending in of Japanese troops in which Japan promised immediately to withdraw her troops when the task of relieving the Czecho-Slovaks had been completed. The note then proceeds to review later Japanese statements and bitterly sums up the present situation as follows:

"Russian Saghalien is occupied. The portions of the maritime province occupied by Japanese troops no longer resemble Russian territory, for the Japanese command conducts itself as though the Japanese and not the Russians were the masters of that territory. The maritime province, under the control of the Japanese is the only province where Semionoff's criminal bands are able to rob and murder the peaceful population. In the maritime province the Russians cannot control Russian affairs. They cannot ship fod, goods or cars outside the area occupied by the Japanese and the inhabitants of other towns are therefore suffering from lack of food and clothing."

The note goes on to contend that the Russians want to be friendly with the Japanese, but adds: "In expressing the will of the whole people, the Constituent Assembly emphatically insists on the evacuation of the Japanese expeditionary forces from the entire territory of the Far Eastern Republic and concluded: "The proximity of the two countries is of importance to the Russian Far East and to Japan and the natural resources of the former, which await foreign capital, are pledges for the future close and peaceful relations between the two countries."

The note to America similarly reviews the situation and concludes with a series of questions, including: "When will America, which invited Japanese military co-operation in the Russian Far East, require a definite end to the intervention which began in 1918 by that invitation?"

Ungern Emissary Arrives In Peking

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, April 11.—A special emissary delegated by the Living Buddha and Baron Ungern reached Peking last Saturday. He bears a draft proposal of his two principals to conclude peace between China and Outer Mongolia on the basis of the terms set forth in the Kiakhta Convention.

The terms, while recognising Mongolia as territory belonging to China, stipulates that China cannot station troops there. They offer Chinese merchants full trade facilities.

The Peking Government is considering the sending of a reply, which is expected to be favorable to the proposal owing to China's present inability to assemble adequate army and equipment to undertake the conquest of Mongolia.

The emissary states that Baron Ungern lacks men and funds in his attempt to re-conquer Siberia or Russia and that the Living Buddha is not anxious to support his scheme. The latter prefers to consolidate his position in Urga where conditions are steadily improving.

Baer: SAYS "BUGS"

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER AGAIN

Foes Of Gink Fowler Saturated With Envy And Soaking Wet With Malice

BY 'BUGS' BAER

Sporting Editor:

Gink Fowler may have been the cat's whiskers, but the sandpaper collar goes to Forger Blake, of this city, who won his nickname in a foundry, and not in a bank. After being booted forth from some of the most aristocratic foundries in America for breaking the anvils, Forger became a pug. His only weakness was a fondness for concrete gloves. The only fight he ever booked was called off because his opponent insisted on hear from you, I remain,

Forger refused to weigh in. He fought with nothing less than 20-pounders because he was afraid of throwing his arm out.

Had Forger won this fight he would have challenged Gink Fowler. Therefore, he claims the crown. Hoping to hear from you, I remain,

Yours sincerely,
KAZIMER WATERBURY.

Worse and better. If jealousy is akin to love, then Gink Fowler is the Francis Bushman of the ring. He has more jealous admirers than anybody in the world. We know this Kazimer Waterbury and all we want to know is why he left South Bend, Indiana. If he confesses why he left that town we will give his claim due recognition.

This Forger Blake was sour milk of the first water. He couldn't brush the dust off Gink's hat. When we started out to publish the bangology of Gink Fowler's lowlife, we did not know that we were opening the canal gates of envy and malice. The champion of Roughtown won his way to police citation on his merits. Who is this Forger Blake, that he criticises Caesar? The king can do no wrong.

We started out in good faith. Knowing the spirit of fairplay and sportmanship that actuates the American public, we thought that they would be pleased to hear of the deeds of the Roughtown viking. But, instead, we get hundreds of letters each day from men who never heard of this champ whose name was a rough household word in Roughtown.

Our memory carries us backward on a reminiscent skid to that glorious day in Roughtown when Gink Fowler and his stepmother left the old homestead together with Gink three jumps ahead of the old gal. Gink had promised his stepmother on her dying steps never to enter the ring as a professional fighter And he kept his word in spite of the fact that he oozed through the ropes at least 5,768 times. Nobody ever saw him fight, and if he was forced to slam an opponent silly he did it more from the standpoint of scientific research than in anger.

One night alone, he smeared his man flatter than linoleum knocked out his seconds, trimmed the referee like a lamp' wick, massacred the entire audience and kicked a cat over a steeple His motto was to always leave them laughing when he said goodbye.

We think this settles the Forger Blake episode. Any more questions you want to ask the trained horse? If he paws once, that means yes. If he paws twice, that means no.

Baseball fans in eight cities leave the hot stove league circuit this afternoon (United States times) and push through turnstiles and get there early for the parades. For the baseball season starts this afternoon (still U. S. time) in eight of our best-known American cities.

The usual march of the opposing teams to the flagpoles and the throwing out of the brand new ball by a more or less notable will precede the opening battles of the season.

It is expected that a Mister Harding will pitch the first ball at Washington where the Boston Red Sox open. A year ago a Mister Wilson did the stunt.

Stanford To Hold Athletic Carnival

Stanford University is planning a twoday spring athletic carnival, very much after the style of the two-day Spanish Fiesta, to be held April 15 and 16.

The track meet and carnival at Stanford have drawn large crowds annually to the campus, and the two-day celebration idea was evolved with the idea of providing for their entertainment.

A king and queen will be elected by student ballot and will officially open the carnival.

The afternoon of the second day will be marked by the track meet with the University of California and a baseball game between the two colleges.

The festivities of the second day will be concluded by a dance fashioned after the old Spanish idea, in which the ladies are masked and the gentlemen unmasked.

Seeks Standard Course For Cross-Country Runs

Jack Moakley, Cornell Coach, Favors Fences, Jumps And Ploughed Ground Of British—Describes Requisites Of Ideal Route

A uniform or standard cross-country course for American runners and a standard course for cross-country races at future Olympic games are recommended by Jack Moakley, dean of American track coaches and head of the last American Olympic track team.

Moakley, who has developed cross-country teams at Cornell University for the last twenty-one years, has made a close and intimate study of the art of cross-country and distance running both here and abroad. He returned only recently from England, where a team of Cornell runners coached by him put up a great race against a picked Oxford-Cambridge team of harriers over the famous course at Roehampton. His conclusions as to the type of cross-country courses that should be adopted in America are based on his experiences both at Antwerp and in England and his long association with the sport in this country.

Before leaving London for America Coach Moakley at a banquet in honor of the American team went on record as favoring the adoption of the English type of course in America. The later statement makes clear what he means.

"When crosscountry running was inaugurated in this country as an intercollegiate sport the first intercollegiate meet was held in 1899. The races were held over a steeplechase course at Morris Park, N. Y.," said Moakley.

WATER JUMP, TOO

"For several years that course was the site of the intercollegiate championship run. This course included ten jumps—nine hedges and one water jump—in one circuit of one and a quarter miles. The teams ran this circuit five times around. So that when cross-country running was in its infancy among American colleges the steeplechase course was in favor.

"It was true then as it is true now that the classy runners in track invariably made good a cross-country running, but an opportunity was also opened for the plugger to make good.

"After a few years the Morris Park course was abandoned. We now have the hill and dale course of the present. Cross-country running has become more or less of a road race. If didn't follow any plan, but just came about haphazardly. And in today's courses the features of the earlier races are missing."

Moakley advocates a uniform standard course which should combine water jumps, hedges, etc., running over ploughed land, and also include some running on roads, which in this country now means running on macadam. "We should get permission to run on a steeplechase course, which should contain also a few hills, should work in some of the jumps, include a stretch of ploughed land and also some macadam road," said the veteran Cornell mentor, pointing out that in England many of the cross-country races are held on private grounds.

ARE MONOTONOUS NOW

"Cross-country courses now used in America are more or less monotonous. It would be a good thing for the sport to make it more interesting. The type of course I suggest would do that, and what is also important, it would help develop better runners. Cross-country is not only a great sport in itself and an enjoyable one too, but a great thing for developing distance runners. The type of course I am advocating would help a good deal toward that end.

"Going over fences and jumps develops the upper body, arms, shoulders, trunk—in fact it develops a man generally, making him a better athlete and fitting him better for other branches of track work. I regard running over ploughed land as very essential, because the man who overdoes the 'bounding' style of running will soon discover that he can't keep up. Running over ploughed land develops what I consider the ideal action of a distance runner, that is in that he runs close to the ground rather than 'in the air.' Some runners come naturally by that style, notably Al Shrubb in the professional ranks and John Paul Jones in the amateur ranks.

"This quick, low leg action is the ideal form for the distance runner, and in my judgment running over ploughed land compels such a form. A runner will soon find that the bounding style won't do at all. By encouraging American runners to develop such form—quick, low leg action, close to the ground—we can help in developing ten mile and Marathon runners in the United States. What I want to bring out is that cross-country running in America is, generally speaking, road running. To a great extent that is all it is, with the result that our distance runners haven't got the same elasticity of stride so natural to the men across the water.

AVOID JAMMING

"My idea of the true course, not only for this country but for the Olympic games, is that the first obstacle should be a sufficient distance from the start and wide enough in nature to prevent jamming. Indeed all of the obstacles should be sufficiently wide to avoid that."

Referring specifically to the Olympic games Moakley does not recommend a specific course, but a general type of course to be followed at every such international meeting, that is, there should be an agreement on what an Olympic cross-country course is to include, so that all competing teams may know its nature and the sort of running they may look for.

"I am sure that Great Britain, France, Sweden and other nations where cross-country courses conform to the steeplechase, ploughed ground, macadam course that I am recommending would welcome such a generally standardised type of Olympic cross-country course."

Groh May Shift To Second Base

Cincinnati critics are predicting that Heinie Groh will be shifted to second base this season, leaving the hot corner to Sam Bohne, the Coast phenom, who has never played any other position. Groh was a second sacker before Charley Herzog shifted him to third. Wherever Heinie plays, second, third or short, he will be a thorn in the side of the opposition.

GOOD MATERIAL AT HAND

College And School Stars, With Y.M.C.A. Team, Assures Strength

Shanghai basketball players desire to compete with teams from Hongkong, Peking and Tientsin for the honor of representing China in the Far Eastern basketball championships. T. T. Zee, who captained the Chinese Y.M.C.A. quintet, has written to Dr. Gray, secretary of the China Contest Committee, asking that the Shanghai team be allowed to play the other fives.

The Shanghai Harriers Club is interested in the coming open championships and have been in touch with Dr. Gray relative to entry of men in various track events. The local cross-country organisation is particularly keen on long distance events but will enter men in the sprints, 440, 880 and mile races. Rose, the Harriers champion, is expected to show good form at the games.

Coming back to basketball there are ten or a dozen Chinese basketball players in East China who will make teams from other cities travel to represent Chins. In addition to the men on the fast Y.M.C.A. team, there are several stars in nearby schools and colleges.

K. L. Shi at the University of Nanking was a member of the 1915 China quintet, K. K. Tyau and T. T. Mo of St. John's are likely material for a local five

American Drug Company. Annual Shareholders' Meeting

At the annual shareholders meeting of the American Drug Company, held yesterday, the following address was delivered by the acting chairman, F. J. Raven:

"In the absence of your President, Mr. W. S. Fleming, and by virtue of the by-laws under which your Company operates, it becomes my very pleasant duty to act as chairman of this meeting. The records and accounts have been in your hands for sometime and I will follow the usual procedure by taking them as read.

"We are assembled here today to sanction the dividend of 10 percent for the year 1920 which has been recommended by your Board of Directors, but, before voting on the dividend, I would like to make a few remarks with regard to the progress of the Company since its organisation. You will remember that during March, 1919, Voelkel and Shroeder, A.G., was liquidated and purchased by American interest and the name changed to the American Drug Co. which opened its books as an American corporation April 1, 1919.

"For a period of nearly nine months, the Company worked with a depleted staff, securing employees locally as best it could and under an unusual handicap. Stocks in many lines were depleted due to our predecessors' inability to import many items to carry on the large business which had been built up during a period of fifty years.

"Since the American Drug Co. took over the old firm, large orders for materials were placed both in America and Europe. Owing to shipping difficulties, delivery of these orders was greatly delayed. Orders which were usually filled before the war in from three to six months required from nine to twelve months during 1919 and a greater portion of 1920, but I am happy to state that during the past six months all our orders have been filled in a very satisfactory way.

BUILDINGS ERECTED

"Owing to the rapid growth of the business, the manufacturing plant has been found too small to meet our manufacturing requirements and we have consequently erected two additional large buildings, giving us now a manufacturing floor area of over 100,000 square feet. This space is sufficient for the present, but, in the very near future, we shall require additional buildings, the land for which has already been acquired. The land was secured about two years ago at less than half what the adjoining land is now selling for and the buildings were erected at a savings of over 30 percent of present costs, so we feel that the money was well expended.

"Sales of the Company's products, both imported and manufactured in our factories, have increased steadily. From a monthly turnover of $18,000 during April, 1919, when the Company was taken over, the sales have steadily increased to a turnover of $72,000 during March, 1921, with every indication that the sales will increase as rapidly in the future or even more so than they have in the past.

"You will note from the balance sheet that our earnings for the past year are sufficient to warrant the payment of a dividend of 10 percent. This is very gratifying to your Directors who wish to give the entire credit for these results to the excellent work of the management and staff. It is very interesting to note that, owing to depleted staff and stocks, the Company did not reach a dividend-paying basis until July, 1920. The Company's profits have, therefore, all been made since July. If the Company could make a profit of over 10 percent in the latter part of 1920 and the monthly sales for 1921 are greatly in excess of those in 1920, you can readily see what a bright future we have before us.

"You will note by our balance sheet that our paid up capital is $642,36[illegible]. It is obvious from the magnitude of our operations that the balance of this capital should be paid up and steps are now being taken by your Finance Committee to have the balance of the unissued shares offered to the public.

"The overdrafts with our bankers are larger than they would be under ordinary conditions but have been caused by the receipt of very large stocks within the past few months which have arrived much more rapidly than they could be sold. The stocks were purchased at very favorable rates of exchange and have cost us much less than they would cost at the present time, so we consider we are very fortunate than otherwise in having large stocks at this time."

Ask Council To Act AgainstRiceHoarders

The Woosung and Shanghai Rice Stability Association has addressed another letter to the Municipal Council with regard to the recent increases in the price of that cereal.

The letter states that following the previous appeal and the Council's action in the matter and the police investigation there was a gratifying decrease in the cost to consumers, but that of late hoarding has again been started by dealers and there has been a rise of $2 per picul. The society asks that another Municipal proclamation be issued and that there be periodic investigations by the police, regulating the amount of rice which may be held in store.

Hangchow Tag Day Helps Famine Fund

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, April 9.—Tag day brought in $2,676.824, all of which has been forwarded to the International Famine Relief Committee, the entire overhead expenses being provided by the Civil Governor who also served as Honorary President of the Campaign Committee. The Campaign Committee was composed of representatives of the Provincial Educational Society, the Y. W. C. A., and the Y. M. C. A. Sub-committees were also at work in each of the twenty three participating schools.

Chuchow, April 2.—Anhwui Tuchuin, Chang Wen-seng, has brought down from Chihli over 2,000 boys and distributed them in cities of Anhwui along the Tientsin-Pukow railway. Several hundred of them have even been lodged in the provincial capital. The Tuchuin's original plan was to raise $40,000 by subscription among the civil and military officials in the province to pay the expense of keeping these boys until after the Chihli wheat harvest. He figured that it would take about twenty dollars per boy to care for them during the few months they would be lodged in Anhwui.

We have 100 of these boys in Chuchow. About twenty have been in the old fashioned Chinese schools. The other day classes were begun for all of them. Hand looms are being made and a teacher has been hired from the Nanking Orphanage and the older boys will be taught how to make towels. In the short time they are here it is not probable that any of them will become proficient. But they will have learned how to weave and also will have been given some regular work to do.

The By-law Is A Remedial Measure And The Remedy Is Worse Than The Disease

Dear Sirs,

You will be called upon to-morrow to pass on a proposed by-law regarding printed matter which, we presume you have learned, has been drafted for the sake of identifying the source of literature of an inflammatory character, or in any way detrimental to the welfare of the International Settlement. We beg to say that we are of the firm opinion that this by-law will not achieve the aim in view, because any person who wants to circulate objectionable literature in the International Settlement will be able easily to have his printed matter prepared outside the Settlement, and will avail himself of various means whereby the distribution shall take place, in a manner which it is beyond the power of the police to check. Once this by-law is passed, have you, dear sirs, considered what will happen, you who enjoy the privilege of shaping the administrative policy of the Shanghai Municipal Council?

Having carefully studied the by-law in question, we wish to make clear the point that this by-law does not only concern professional printers or regular publishers who, by the very nature of their professions, would have their registration effected through sheer necessity. But you can at any time become affected by the by-law and treated as a printer if you should, instead of employing a printing machine, make use of any mechanical mode of reproduction to print, which term covers every description of duplicating appliance in use in business houses, educational institutions, and the offices of public bodies, provided the substance of what you print comes within the extensive scope of the by-law, namely, "any newspaper, pamphlet, circular, handbill, leaflet, placard, or other paper containing public news, intelligence, or occurrences or any remarks or observations thereon." Unless you have first of all had your name and usual places of abode and business registered with the Consulate or the Municipal Council, as the case may be, you will, in the absence of such registration, have committed an offence against the by-law for which the Council can take action against you. Furthermore, although you have been registered as a printer, you are not thereby entitled to publish what you have printed because the by-law provides for similar registration for the publisher. Thus, whether you are a regular publisher or not, provided you have something that would come within the scope of the printed matter described by the by-law, you have no right to publish same until the Council has also registered you as a publisher. The by-law requires registration on grounds other than that of a professional printer or non-professional printer, or regular publisher or occasional publisher, because he who causes the printing, or he who causes the publishing of the aforesaid printing, is equally required to be registered.

NON-PUBLIC NEWS PRINTED MATTER. What has been said above refers to public news, intelligence, or occurrence, or any remarks or observations thereon. But have you also taken thought on the point that this by-law applies to "any paper whatsoever that shall be meant to be published or dispersed"? Note the comprehensive character of the printed matter, the one condition being the intention of publishing or dispersing, which is the common object of almost everything that is printed by a printing machine, or by any mechanical mode of reproduction. Thus, what is required by the by-law in this case is that the printer, professional or non-professional shall print upon the front of such paper (if of one leaf), or upon the first or last or editorial leaf (if of more than one leaf), his name and usual places of abode and business. But when this requirement is not fulfilled, not only will the printer be charged with the violation of the by-law (for the by-law empowers the Council to take action against any person who has any connection with the printed matter, that is to say, printed matter whereon the printer's name and address happens to have been omitted intentionally or unintentionally), whether as publisher of, professional or non-professional, or as disperser of, or as one who assists in publishing, or as one who assists in dispersing, the aforesaid printed matter.

From what has been said in the foregoing paragraphs, it will be readily seen how easily non-professional printers or non-regular publishers could become offenders under the proposed by-law in the event of their printing (or reproducing mechanically), prior to registration, anything in the nature of public news, etc., and how the same danger is ever in existence when the public happen to have handled any printed matter intended for circulation, whether as printers, publishers or dispersers, when for some reason or other the printer's name happens to have been left out from the aforesaid printed matter. Now for any one of these numerous ways whereby the by-law would be violated, the liability of the offender consists of A FINE NOT EXCEEDING THREE HUNDRED DOLLARS OR IMPRISONMENT NOT EXCEEDING THREE MONTHS and, let it be noted, ability to pay the fine does not necessarily safeguard the offender from imprisonment.

When we call to mind the important fact that the existing laws which have beenenforced in the International Settlement for so many years past have never proved inadequate to deal with offences of a character calculated to disturb the peace and good order of the Settlement, and when we do not lose sight of the other notable fact that the by-law is only intended to identify the source of inflammatory literature, it is no exaggeration to say that in the case before you, dear sirs, the remedy is actually worse than the disease. We maintain that registration should be confined to professional printers or regular publishers, and that in case of deliberate non-registration, the offender should only be subject to a light fine and no imprisonment under any consideration, because the act of non-registration is not a penal offence and hence should not be punished as such. For acts connected with dangerous propaganda the offender could always be suitably dealt with by other available laws specially framed to meet such cases.

We, therefore, appeal to the good judgment of you, dear sirs, who, as qualified voters at the ratepayers' meeting to-morrow, are in a position to suffer or to PREVENT THE PASSAGE OF THE BY-LAW which, as we have pointed out before, could easily be evaded by persons determined to carry out objectionable propaganda by having printed matter imported into the Settlement, or by putting thereon, for the sake of shirking responsibility, the name of another printer, though without malicious intent. As we firmly hope that you do share with us our conviction that the remedy in the present case is worse than the disease, we earnestly beseech you in the interests of the general public to oppose the passage of the by-law after weighing its pros and cons.

Yours very respectfully,

Chamber Of Commerce On Important Matters

A report detailing numerous important matters which were brought up for consideration and action during the past year was presented yesterday at the annual general meeting of the Shanghai General Chamber of Commerce. The proposed new Shanghai mint, the depreciation of subsidiary coinage, wharfage dues, revision of godown regulations and other questions affecting the commercial life of the Settlement were commented upon by the chairman and are referred to in the Committee's published report of the year's activities.

The meeting was presided over by Mr. C. G. S. Mackie and there were also present of the Committee Messrs. H. H. Kirardet, V. Meynard, M. Nodaira, E. C. Pearce, G. H. Stitt and R. McE. Dalgliesh, and Mr. M. G. Beck, secretary.

Following the chairman's speech the following were elected to serve on the Committee for 1921: Messrs. N. S. Brown, P. A. Cox, H. H. Girardet, C. G. S. Mackie, V. Meynard, M. Nodaira, J. J. Paterson, E. C. Pearce, C. L. Seitz and G. H Stitt.

The chairman's speech follows:

"The report and accounts for the year ending December 31 last have been in your hands some time now. Before moving their adoption I will refer briefly to some of the principal matters brought before the Committee.

"Bills of Lading Amended Reading.—Every endeavor was made to get the Shanghai Exchange Bankers Association to waive their decision to refuse bills of lading reading 'received for shipment' but without avail. The banks give us to understand that the trouble is not brought about at this end as their hands are tied under the conditions of letters of credit against which shipments are financed. This is to be regretted as it imposes a great hardship on shippers, particularly where cargo is shipped per steamers anchored at Woosung. Unless shipping companies issue bills of lading without production of mate's receipts it is impossible to get documents completed in time to forward by steamer carrying the cargo, which means that goods arrive at destination long before documents are in the hands of consignees.

OIL STORAGE PROBLEM

"Storage of Kerosene, Benzine and Gasoline.—This subject was brought up for discussion some months ago and after getting the views of the principal shipping interests your Committee addressed a letter to the Commissioner of Customs expressing the opinion that it would not be desirable to allow further tank installations in the near vicinity of the Harbor limits. However, subsequent representations have been addressed to the Chamber on the question with the request that the matter might be reconsidered. Sufficiently good arguments have been advanced to justify a re-opening of the discussion. The incoming Committee will, I hope, deal with the matter at an early date.

"Entry in Advance and Amended Godown Regulations.—Up to the present the Customs have not agreed, except in special cases, to grant shipping companies the privilege of a number in advance of steamer's arrival. They have indicated that this great benefit to trade might be obtained if it could be arranged to put the proposed new godown regulations into force. As it is now a recognised fact that it is quite impossible for the local godown companies, with the facilities at their disposal, to carry out the regulations as drafted, it is to be hoped that the Inspector General of Customs will grant what must be considered a very reasonable request.

"Depreciation of Subsidiary Coinage.—The serious effect of the excessive minting of copper coins has been amply demonstrated by Mr. McColl in his recent pamphlets, which have doubtless been read with interest by all present. Your Committee has forwarded these publications to Peking through the Senior Consul and trust that the Diplomatic Body will make such representations to the Chinese Government as will lead to the early fulfilment of their Treaty obligations in respect to the question of currency.

MINT PLAN INADEQUATE

"The proposed mint.—The recently announced scheme of the Chinese Government for the establishment of a mint in Shanghai though a move in the right direction, will have to go a good deal further before it can be pronounced acceptable by the Foreign bank. The Foreign Exchange Bankers Association has laid down certain conditions which they consider essential, namely, the appointment of Chinese and foreign co-directors with joint powers supported by a foreign staff comprising at least two assayers, three inspectors, and an accountant, while a further condition is that the coinage must be discontinued by other mints in China unless these are controlled by the Central Government and placed under expert foreign supervision similar to that of the Shanghai mint. On the assumption that the Chinese Government is willing to concede these conditions the scheme for the proposed mint will be welcomed and the Chinese Government will be able to rely on foreign co-operation.

"Woosung-Hankow Pilot Association.—This Association having been unable to secure the approval of the Cousular Body to the proposed regulations for the control of foreign pilots on the Lower Yangtsze between Woosung and Hankow approached us again to ascertain if the Chamber would lend its support to a new set of regulations based on the same lines. As it is in the opinion of your Committee most desirable that a system of thorough control over pilots be established the Association was informed that new rules, as suggested would be favorably considered. Regulations were subsequently drawn up by Mr. Wilkinson and have been approved by the Chamber and the Marine Underwriters Association.

EXPECT NEW PILOT BOAT

"Shanghai Licensed Pilots' Association.—A new tariff was drawn up during the year. The special sub-committee appointed to investigate this matter expressed the opinion that the pilots had not complied with Article 4 (d) of regulations as regards equipment of their craft to give efficient service to vessels using the port. A number of members of the Association gave an undertaking that a new pilot boat would be contructed as soon as feasible. At the time they made this promise the price of ship building was prohibitive but now conditions have altered and we have reason to believe that tenders are being called for and we hope a contract will be placed at an early date.

"Theft of cargo on the River.—Everything is being done by the shipping companies to try and combat this evil. Formerly thieves when captured were handed over to the native authorities but now they are being taken into the Mixed Court. Although the fines imposed in certain cases appear to have been somewhat light the new method of dealing with the culprits seems to have had a beneficial effect. When the River Police force is strengthened, as recommended, by additional men and launches with searchlights for night duty, a great improvement in the present unsatisfactory state of affairs may reasonably be expected. We are informed by the Harbor Master that two new steam launches will be in commission by the end of this month.

MEMBERSHIP GROWS

"Membership.—22 new members have been elected during the year, bringing the total up to 117. Your Committee however would like to see the Chamber meet with even better support. Although various national Chambers have been formed during the past few years they deal primarily with matters more directly concerning their own subjects. In this international port there are constantly questions arising which affect the general trade of the place and these can be more advantageously dealt with by an organisation such as this. The Chamber has done excellent work in the past and with the ever increasing trade of Shanghai there is more need for it now than ever."

The chairman then proposed the adoption of the report and accounts, the proposal being seconded by Mr. R. McE. Dalgliesh and carried unanimously.

Private Nurses' Ass'n Managing Committee

The annual meeting of the managing committee of the Private Nurses' Association took place at 35 Boone Road yesterday. Those present included Drs. E. L. Marsh (Chairman), E. D. Jackson, H. C. Patrick, Mrs. Cromarty, Miss E. Summerskill, honorary secretary; Miss C. Hutton, Superintendent and Mr. H. Middleton, honorary treasurer. The report and accounts for the year were approved and passed and it was agreed the council be requested to continue to provide at least six rooms for the accommodation of nurses who are members of the Association.

The report of the honorary secretary, E. Summerskill, follows:

"Cases nursed: Medical, 59; surgical, 10; Maternity, 19; mental, 0; infectious, 10. Total 98.

"The above table shows a decrease of 15 cases nursed by the P. N. A. nurses owing to the large increase of Municipal staff. There have been no cases refused during the later months of the year; on the contrary there have been several nurses unemployed.

"Residing in the Home at the end of the year are six association nurses.

"Out of the 98 cases nursed there have been six deaths.

"The health of the nurses has been good generally; one nurse was off duty during December owing to diphtheria and was removed to the Isolation Hospital.

"It is with regret that I report the death of Miss Hamlyn by drowning while on the way to Kuling for a holiday."

Financial particulars of the cash account for the year ending Jan. 31, 1921 inclusive show a balance with the Chartered Bank of $94.21, and impreset with superintendent, $25.00, total $119.21.

Chinese Firm Brings Claim For £2,800

A hearing was held yesterday before Judge Skinner Turner in the British Supreme Court of a claim for £2,800 made against Messrs. Ch. Goldrei Foucard and Co. by the Hsin Ching Hong in respect of a transaction in duck albumen.

Plaintiffs claim that the transfer was made on August 13 last at an agreed price of £2,800, due next day. Defendants contention is that the goods were sold for plaintiffs' risk and realised a sum less than that stated.

Mr. H. P. Wilkinson appeared for the plaintiffs and Mr. H. Lipson Ward for the defendants. The case was adjourned.

The Chinese Recorder

The Chinese Recorder, April 1921.—Published monthly by the American Presbyterian Mission Press.

In the varied table of contents for this month there is probably no more significant item than the brief article entitled "The Peace Makers," by Professor Heeren, of Shantung Christian University. Here we hear a voice that has been long silenced by the alarms of war, but which was sure to speak again when peace came, even though confidence had not been restored. The Christian religion is glorified as a religion of peace, that teaches men to live without war, and all Christians are urged to emphasise it in this sense. "Let us apply this beatitude, this test, to our own lives, our organisation, our civilisation, and to the great outstanding problem of today the establishment of peace, industrial and international peace. We call ourselves, our machinery, our civilisation, Christian, but we must justify this title of divine sonship by taking upon ourselves the burden of making peace."

We have nothing but the heartiest agreement with the ideal and the task here presented; surely this is the work of Christians, if anything is. There is one warning note that must be uttered, however, seeing that the writer keeps his eyes upon the hope for a new earth, that same new earth that many of us thought had already taken up its headquarters at The Hague some seven years ago. Let us not forget the lessons which this war taught us, and which no other war had ever taught. Men of former years had indeed indulged extravagant hopes, but none before the nineteenth century had the same right to indulge them that was possessed by the men of 1914. When a powerful nation proposes to make a scrap of paper out of treaties, and enforces its will with ruthless and needless cruelty and bloodshed, then the only course is "Force; force without stint or limit." Our most passionate preaching of peace must have that sombre and threatening background, for we have learned that without it, the world is not a safe place to live in. Some nations may be converted to peace, and repent and bring forth fruits meet for repentance; but it may be also that to the end of the days of any who are now alive there will be found to be other nations who can be kept in the straight and narrow path of international justice only by an exhibition of power, and a threat to use it.

The series of papers in which is exhibited the thought of Chinese students of the present day about Christianity, is continued in the account of "Modern Radical Thought among Chinese Students" by Dr. R. Y. Lo, and the Rev. Paul Hutchinson. This paper has already appeared elsewhere, and was originally read before the meeting of the East China Educational Association this spring. It is so informing that it should be known in its details to all who have any interest in the future of China. It is plain that there are breakers ahead for the young man and woman here, and many of the breakers seem at first sight to be due to mere youthfulness. And yet, after some study of the facts, it will be seen that there is not a thing that might not have been expected from the introduction of Christianity. The Kingdom of Heaven really is just what Jesus said it was; it is like leaven; and wherever it comes it affects the whole lump, and disturbs all the good people who had become quite accustomed to the heavy dough, and quite satisfied with it. Many of the present difficulties do not seem to be immediate products of the preaching of Christianity, and yet there are few of them that a little thought will not show to be at least by-products of missionary propaganda.

"The Program of the Christian Church in China," by the Rev. W. C. Fairfield is a brief and statesmanlike statement. The "editorials" consist of a long quotation from Bishop Brooks, on the subject of "Toleration." To name the author is to name the quality of the analysis and exposition presented, and as for the subject, no one who knows the state of things in the theological section of the missionary world will fail to understand its timeliness.

The longest article is by the Rev. H. K. Wright, on "Religious Persecution in China;" not persecution of heterodox missionaries by orthodox ones, as some have thought from the title, but a historical study of the persecution by the Confucian government of non-Confucian religions. The writer attempts to correct the errors of previous students of the subject, and to furnish the facts needed for an understanding of the State's attitude to Christianity.

A RELIABLE REMEDY FOR ASTHMA

Discovery of a Leading Physician

A public test will be made tomorrow at A. S. Watson and Co., Ltd.

All day tomorrow free sample packages of the celebrated "Schiffmann's Asthmador" will be given away at A. S. Watson & Co., Ltd., 16 Nanking Road.

The doctor wants each sufferer from Asthma, Hay Fever or Bronchitis in this town, who has not already used his remedy, to call and get one. When asked regarding his reasons for giving his remedy away in this manner, he said: "People are naturally skeptical about an asthma remedy, and when you consider the number of so called "cures" on the market, you can hardly blame them. Now I claim that my remedy will instantly relieve the most violent attack, no matter how severe or obstinate the case. If I do not believe it, why should I be giving it away? The sufferer who gets a sample package can tell in two minutes whether it is as I represent it, and it doesn't cost him anything. That is fair, isn't it?" It certainly does not look as if anything could be fairer.

Persons residing in other localities, outside of this city, who desire to try this medicine, will be sent a free sample package, per post, providing they send simply their name and full address (no other writing) on a postcard, within the next six days, and address Muller Phipps & Hodges (China), Ltd., 1B Jinkee Road, Shanghai.

Your Health Comes First

Good Health is your most valuable asset;—its preservation should, therefore, receive your most careful consideration. An important point which should always be borne in mind is the fact that a great many forms of ill-health can be traced, directly or indirectly, to disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is wise, therefore, to keep these organs in healthy activity. When they show any signs of derangement let that reliable medicine, Beecham's Pills, be taken at once. Always deal with digestive ailments in time. They are far-reaching in their possibilities of mischief if neglected, as they too often are. And yet it is generally easy to keep fit and well and free from many debilitating ailments by the simple use of

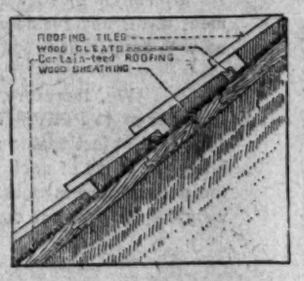
ROOFING SUGGESTIONS

For Building Owners (No. 2)

Tile roofs are only effective when the wood sheathing is covered with

Certain-teed Roofing



French tiles give a handsome finish to a modern residence. The variety of shapes and the bright red color are capable of producing a very decorative effect.

Formerly, tiles were laid over-lapping one another on a wooden surface and held in place by wood cleats as shown in the illustration. This arrangement produces an effective water shed for the rainfall which descends to the gutter and is carried away through the drain.

It is not effective, however, for the moisture that seeps in through the chinks, crevices, holes etc., and likewise for the humidity in the atmosphere. This can only be kept out of the house by placing a layer of felt roofing saturated with asphalt between the wood sheathing and the tiling.

For this we recommend

as the most economical and efficient composition roofing made.

Recommended by architects and builders.

Chemur United Rubber Co., Ltd.

At the annual meeting of the Chemur United Rubber Co., Ltd., held yesterday at the offices of the secretaries and managers, Messrs. R. N. Truman and Co., at No. 103 Szechuen road, the yearly dividend was postponed, and the profits, for the year, totalling Tls. 58,468, were divided, Tls. 11,801 to write off building, furniture and developments account, and commissions to estate managers, and Tls. 46,667 to be carried forward.

The year financially was reported as having been successful. The present condition of the market for raw material was given as the reason for the recommendation of the postponed dividend.

The present acreage planted to Hevea, the directors' report states, is 1,309, with 75 acres held as building sites reserve lands and swamps. The area planted during the year totalled but 9 acres. The harvest of rubber amounted to 302,102 as against an estimate of 282,000. For 1921 a crop of 240,000 is expected, the reduction being due to the 25 percent restrictions.

Mr. F. W. Sutterle, acted as chairman of yesterday's meeting in the absence of Chairman E. E. Clark. M. R. N. Truman was the only other director present. Shares numbering 56,425 were represented.

Resolutions providing that the reports and accounts for the year be accepted, for the re-election of Messrs G. Grayrigge and E. S. Kadoorie as directors and of Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews as auditors, were passed.

The chairman's speech follows:

"Gentlemen.—The planted area of the estates has been increased by nine acres of which seven acres were planted on Chemor division and two acres of a recently acquired native holding on Batu Dua division. The estates are now practically fully planted. Of the 1,309½ acres in Hevea 927 were being tapped at the end of December. Another 300 acres should be ready for tapping next year, by which time I hope conditions will be more favorable.

"The reports on the present condition of the estates are satisfactory, the higher cost of weeding on Batu Dua was due to an area getting behind in weeding during the manager's absence on leave. There was a great scarcity of Tamil labor during the early part of the year and in order to attract labor, wages had to be increased by 25 percent. The health on Chemor was not satisfactory but every effort is being made to improve same. Disease I am glad to say has given no cause for anxiety.

"During the last three months of the year under review we complied with the Rubber Growers' Association's recommendation of 25 percent restriction, so the output was considerably below the figure that might have been obtained. The output on Chemor Division was 206,212 lbs. and if we had not restricted, the manager estimates the output would have been 221,000 lbs. The output on Batu Dua Division was 95,890 lbs. exceeding the estimate by 3,890 lbs., in spite of restriction in the last three months of the year. For the current year the estimate for both estates is 240,000 lbs., this is allowing for 25 percent restriction.

"The f. o. b. cost of 11.53 cents, compared with 10.89 pence last year, may be considered satisfactory, as the cost of labor was higher and the price of all estate supplies greatly enhanced. The loss incurred in supplying coolies with rice at below cost was $11,424.17, this heavy loss is not likely to recur this year as the control by the government of rice will be removed and rice will probably be obtainable at a little above pre-war price.

"The amount of rubber sold, viz: 290,741 lbs., realised the satisfactory average net price at port of shipment of 2/-.41 compared with 1/8.72 in the previous year. The only buildings erected were on Batu Dua section which required a clerk's bungalow and rice store.

"Referring to the accounts. You will note that the year's working account shows a profit of Tls. 55,032.34 compared with Tls. 28,129.08 in 1919 and the profit and loss account a profit of Tls. 47,443.30 compared with Tls. 20,344.85, this, gentlemen, I am sure you will consider satisfactory and it is to be regretted that the present condition of the market for the raw material prevents the recommendation of a dividend.

"The profit for the year of Tls. 47,448.30 together with 11,020.13 brought forward from last year making Tls. 58,468.43 the directors recommend should be dealt with as follows:

	Tls.
To write off buildings	735.29
To write off development account	10,136.88
To payment of commission to estates manager	929.24
	11,801.41
Leaving to be carried forward	46,667.02
	Tls. 58,468.43

"The stocks at the end of the year have been taken below cost of production, at the agents valuation and should show a profit in next year's accounts. If you will refer to the balance sheet you will note that if the above recommendations are approved our assets will stand on the books at a nominal value and that we shall have written Tls. 59,040.08 off development account.

"Mr. Truman visited the estates in February of this year and in conjunction with the manager and visiting agent reduced the estimated expenditure to the minimum without affecting the well being of the gardens.

"The expenditure on such things as thinning out, contour drains etc. has been deferred until times are better. I should like here to express the board's appreciation of the estate manager's work and I feel sure that they fully realise the critical position the industry is passing through and will endeavor to keep expenditure down to the very much reduced estimates."

COTTON YARN GIVES SIGNS OF IMPROVING

March Deliveries, Once Showing Tendency To Decline, Better In Japan

Tokio, March 26.—The cotton yarn market is again mounting higher. On the Exchanges March delivery which was once falling away to the point of Y150 is beyond Y175. However, in the outside market business remains slack and the price is still lagging.

Having been encouraged by the growing strength of silver and cotton at London and New York operators on the Exchanges have been buying up all months higher. On Wednesday March was crossing the point of Y170 again. Yesterday morning, although silver reported a heavy relapse in New York and London, the New York Cotton Exchange reported a heavy recovery and some months were up beyond 13 cents. It gave a powerful incentive to operators and they were quite actively bulling on the Tokio Rice and Produce Exchange yesterday morning.

Till March reached Y178, and some bulls declared that the month might cross the point of Y180. August also crossed the point of Y193.90. Although in the afternoon less active buying bids were noted from the bullish ranks the price was comparatively well maintained. At the day's close March delivery was still above Y175. August delivery was above Y181. On the Osaka Sampin Exchange also the cotton yarn market maintained a similar turn.

However, in the Tokio spot bargain market business remained slack, provincial weavers having still kept out of the market. The price showed no such ready advances. Red Fuji No. 20 staid at Y180.

That Filipino Book-Keeping Law

WITH some slight elisions, eliminating what in the circumstances we can only consider as extraordinarily mild abuse, we take pleasure in printing the following letter from a Shanghai resident of Filipino origin:

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—I took pleasure in reading your editorial entitled "The Philippine Legislature Gets Twisted" in today's issue of The China Press and I cannot help but recall the following story:

During the Spanish Regime in the Philippines, the Spanish People in Spain were so grossly ignorant of the Philippines that even the Minister under whose care the Philippine Islands was entrusted did not know what was happening in this their possession. There was a cable service between Spain and the Islands and the only thing the minister knew was the constant insurrection in this or that province by the "insurrectos and pulajanes." Every time an insurrection was reported he immediately cabled. "Send a battalion and exterminate the insurrectos and pulajanes." He received one such report one day when immediately following came the report that the anay had destroyed the government building. To scientists the anay is known as a species of white ant eating wooden boards and posts. The minister in great rage immediately cabled: "Send all the infantry and cavalry available to exterminate the anay."

I do not know whether you can get the humor of the story but anybody who knows the Philippines that can read your editorial in today's issue will remember the story; I do not say that your ignorance can be compared to the Spanish minister's but your editorial can only be described as wild and sensational.

You said that if all the merchants, Americans and Chinese, leave the Philippines and American protection is taken away we will revert to the state in which Magellan found us. This is nonsense. American commerce surely put the Philippines on the map but certainly you do not mean that because we were not on the map before the Americans came we were savages.

The man who told you that the 15,000 Chinese merchants must pay a book-keeper the sum of P200 a month ought to be beheaded. He certainly is a devil. If he is not a devil he will truthfully inform you that there is nothing of book-keeping in this book-keeping law. That it is simply a continuation of the old, old system of the Philippine Bureau of Internal Revenue to jot down in the simple government blank book the sales of the day, which any infant in the Philippines can do, and which every merchant has been doing up to this present noise that you make.

But the Internal Revenue officers found that the Chinese merchants try to evade the law as the wine dealers in the United States evade the law of prohibition. They can sell P2,000 worth of goods daily and they can tell the officers that they sell fifty cents worth only. The revenue interest will therefore be based on the fifty cents and not on the two thousand. Now the idea to write on the blanks in English or Spanish language only is just a protective measure and if you say that this is not done in other countries the Filipinos can also say that there is no difference in getting money whether by indemnity, prohibition or income tax, the result is money.

When your list of merchants would be convinced by the fact that the Book-keeping Law would stop the Chinese merchants piracy and thievery not only against the Government but against them their dissatisfaction would end. The way these American merchants get nervous when the law does not affect them seems to smell of bribery.

There is a deluge of book-keepers in Manila. To mention that another P600 must be paid to revise books is childish. Even the Standard Oil Company pays as high as $6,000 a month for auditors to revise the work of of book-keepers earning $1,000. monthly. But the American jingoes do not consider this fact when talking about the Philippines. Respectfully,

FILIPINO.

Our correspondent would have us believe that the Philippines legislature has done nothing whatever in the matter of the Book-keeping Law. "It is simply a continuation of the old, old system.

Yet in yesterday's paper we printed a list of about fifty of the most prominent foreign firms engaged in business in the islands protesting against this law passed by the Philippines legislature in the last minutes of its last session. The petition signed by these able and energetic businessmen whose successful projects have done so much for the development of the islands declares that this law "would drive the Chinese out of business, would vitally affect the economic situation in the islands, would react in an important way upon all other merchants and business of every kind, that it is contrary to the fundamental ideas of justice and fair play, that it is wholly unnecessary and that such a law has never been heard of in any other country."

And when these merchants make these statements we must assume that they know what they are talking about. They are on the scene. They know the conditions. They have studied the law and are fully convinced of what its effects would be and they know what class it is aimed at. They are not in the position, of the Spanish Governor General in the story, nor are we when we quote them. Rather we should say, our correspondent living up here and apparently ignorant of what the law is which he attempts to discuss, is very much in the old Spaniard's shoes.

Meanwhile our correspondent achieves nothing by accusing the Chinese merchants in the Philippines of being thieves and pirates, anymore than he does by insinuating that all these prominent foreign firms who are appealing to Washington against this ridiculous law and in defense of the Chinese, have been bribed.

Our Marines Defended

Edwin Denby, newly appointed Secretary of the U. S. Navy, was formerly a Marine. He recently wrote the following letter to Col. George Harvey, editor of Harvey's Weekly who has just been appointed Ambassador to Great Britain. This correspondence took place before either was aware he was to be appointed to high office by President Harding:

Sir,—Some time ago I wrote you in regard to your publication of certain remarks concerning the Marine Corps, which would lead the reader to suppose that, in your opinion, the Corps was guilty of the atrocities charged against it in Haiti.

I asked you at the time if you would be kind enough to quote in your paper from the report, should it be found that the Marines were not guilty of the offences charged. The inquiry is finished, and I send enclosed a copy of the report which is very brief.

"May I not" request that you will publish in the Weekly some or all of this report in order that your readers may be disabused of the erroneous impression created by your previous publication

Edwin Denby.

Detroit, Mich.

[Our comments, wrote Col Harvey in reply, were, of course, based upon Brigadier General Barnett's letter and its very explicit statement. The court now finds that "there have been no proper grounds for the statement that 'practically indiscriminate killing of natives has been going on for some time" as alleged in the letter from General Barnett." It also finds that two unjustifiable homicides were committed by two members of the United States Naval Service, and that sixteen other serious acts of violence were committed against Haitians by members of that service; all of them being isolated acts of individuals, and all of the perpetrators being apprehended, tried, convicted and sentenced. It is a great pleasure to publish this vindication of the general conduct of our Marines in Haiti. Of course we never supposed that they were generally given to such atrocities as were charged in General Barnett's letter.]

Order is Heaven's first law, and this confessed,
Some are and must be greater than the rest,
More rich, more wise, but who infers from thence
That such are happier shocks all common sense.

The trouble today is that order may be Heaven's first law, but it is the last thing we seem to think about down here. The fact that some are more rich, and more wise, does not make them happier, any more than it makes those contented, who are struggling out an existence with money scarce, and brains scarcer.

But it has been ever thus. If the Editor will allow me, and if you will try to follow me, I shall in the next three columns talk about—or rather write about, "Social Revolution." It sounds horribly learned, doesn't it? But it won't be. History is so fascinating a subject; it is endowed with so much imagination, and being "big with the past" promises so much for the future that I am endeavoring to show that whether it is a king, a noble or a middle class—and still more recently a labor class—human nature being what it is, the class which has enjoyed power has always exercised, it, consciously or unconsciously, in its own interests.

"The possession of a sharp sword is always a strong temptation to use it; and overgrown armaments are always a threat to the peace of the world."

Let me deal entirely with "Social Revolution" as it is brought about in English History.

It was Henry II, in the Twelfth Century, who elaborated a governmental system, and no sooner had he perfected it than his two successors, Richard I, and John used it to extort money and service from their people for their own particular ends.

But aristocracies have not been much better. As soon as our English nobles had weakened the Throne, they proceed to usurp its powers and use them to strengthen their own position and privileges.

EXAMPLE ONE

When William the Conqueror handed out estates to those barons who crossed the Channel and helped him to become England's king as well as Normandy's duke, he did so with the idea that the barons held these lands in trust; and on condition that the lands should maintain men enough to supply the whole national defense. William was what one would call nowadays a "wise guy." He saw that they carried out his idea. As soon as he went West, his successors were not able to keep in control the men to whom the Conqueror had given power, and so when Stephen came along, with his title to the throne strongly challenged by every fair person, he gave the barons a little more power, and then the land became absolute property, and the men it maintained were not so much for national defense as for their own particular lord's grandizement.

EXAMPLE TWO

When the first King Edward called a number of nobles to form a house to keep an eye upon the House of Commons, he was wise enough to recognise the fact that it was not always "Like father, like son." And so he did not suggest that because Dad had a seat, son-and-heir should have a seat also. What happened?

Somewhere in the Seventeenth Century the peers themselves, and not by any act of Parliament, established the fact that the Crown had nothing whatever to say in the matter and thus the House of Lords became hereditary.

So much for the Lords.

NOW THE MIDDLE CLASSES

When power came their way they were no better than any of their predecessors. In their turn they controlled the House of Commons—not the House of Lords—but, when in the Eighteenth Century the House of Commons had seized political power, it was no more inclined to share it than the Stuarts had been. They cut out the Press, whatever it might have been at the time; they refused to publish either their division-lists or an account of their deliberations.

But note. The dominent interest of the Middle Classes was mercantile—just as the principal interest to the nobles was land—and thus we get the influence of money competing with that of land, Ireland was ruined and colonies lost to protect the interests of the commercial—(middle)—classes and practically every war in the warlike Eighteenth Century was entered into in the interest of Commerce.

So Kings, nobles, and middle classes have used the instrument of power—consciously or unconsciously for their own ends.

THE NEW ERA

Now this the middle class predominance is passing away, and the signs are only too plain that the masses, to which power has come by reason of numbers, are demanding a long deferred share in the good things of life and of politics.

Whether democrary will be more national in its outlook, and less dominated by class interests, than monarchy, aristocracy, and middle class, remains yet to be seen.

Tomorrow. The Peasant's Progress.

Monte Carlo And Warren, Ohio

There is an orgy on at Monte Carlo. There always is, for that matter. There was one on even during the war—somewhat subdued, to be sure, yet fundamentally the same old orgy.

But the present orgy is by way of being a record-breaker. Mr. Wythe Williams, the correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, writes that the immensity of the present Bacchanalian war reaction at the Riviera resorts "is proportionate to the world calamity which preceded it and may account for it."

And Americans, as usual, are leading the dance. The English come next, but our own countrymen and countrywomen are far and away at the head of the revels. But the Germans are there, too. Those who have cashed in their war profiteering swag and those who have cashed in the proceeds of their robberies of French and Belgian homes—they are all represented. There is a wail all over Germany about paying the damage bill of the war, but there is German gold for the roulette tables, dumped thereon without a murmur.

The only nationality unrepresented at the spree is the French. "I have yet to see a single French couple at Monte Carlo," writes Mr. Williams. Yet we turn up our eyes and shake our heads mournfully over French "immorality"! Something is clearly awry here—awry in our generalisations, or awry with the French.

But no matter. We are on deck in full force. Beyond a doubt the noble army of our own profiteers are conspicuously in evidence. Money is nothing to them. Why should it be?

Meantime, millions of the wretched human debris of the war are dying for want of food and freezing for want of clothing wherewith to cover their nakedness against the fierce blasts of winter. In that connection, here is what Mr. Wythe Williams writes as to the doings at Monte Carlo:

"At this moment, at every moment of the day and night except for a few hours from dawn until midafternoon, there are enough "plaques" representing money on the gambling tables at the Monte Carlo Casino and Sporting Club and in gambling rooms at the other resorts, which, if applied for the purpose, would eliminate any further "drives" for the devastated regions of France, or for the hungry children of Central Europe."

It is one kind of an American abroad who is heaping up the gold piles on the gambling tables. But there is another kind of American who is at home. A casual specimen of him happens to be heard from out in Warren, Ohio. He sent in his offering to help the starving ones abroad, and with it he sent to the Committee this little note:

"We really cannot afford this, but we simply have got to afford it, one little coat, one little pair of shoes and stockings, and one meal a day for one child through the winter. I am 78 years old, get a Union soldier's pension of $50 per month, and we rent some rooms in our little home. Will I make this up? You bet I will; I have it all planned out now. I will put more taps on our shoes, and color over my hat and coat, and be happy in another opportunity for displaying true Americanism."

Now what a sorry figure this poor old chap would cut by the side of that other kind of American over in Monte Carlo, where the boast is of the swindling prices paid for hotel accommodations, for food, and for the glittering junk of the Riviera shops! Think of his "tapped" shoes and his "colored" hat and coat in that befurred, bejeweled throng! What a fantastic notion of true Americanism that singular old person has, to be sure!—Harvey's Weekly.

The Naval Stores Industry

The term, "naval stores," is applied to turpentine and rosin, and related products of certain species of pine, fir and spruce trees. It originated in the use of tar and pitch, the earliest of the products, for caulking seams and smearing ropes of sailing vessels. With the practically complete displacement of wooden ships by steel vessels, the importance of these products declined. However, new uses were gradually developed for turpentine and rosin, which are now the chief naval stores.

Since 1820 the United States has led the world in the production of naval stores and at the present time produces approximately 75 percent of the total world production. American production in the last ten years has averaged 28,000,000 gallons of spirits of turpentine, and 939,000,000 pounds of rosin. In the southern states, where are located the forests of resinous pine from which the products are secured, the production of naval stores has since the Civil War held a place second only to agriculture and lumbering. The annual output is valued at more than $40,000,000.

The chief use of turpentine is in the paint and varnish industry, which consumes about 85 percent of the total amount used. Of this, 45 percent is used in the manufacture of paints and varnishes and the remaining 40 percent for thinning them when they are applied. Aside from its solvent properties advantages in the use of turpentine as a thinner for paint are that it dries slowly enough to allow time for furrows and brush marks to disappear, penetrates the wood, and forms a good bond where new paint is applied on an old paint film. About 5 percent of the domestic consumption of turpentine is for medicinal purposes, including disinfectants, liniments, medicated soaps, ointments and internal remedies, and about 3 percent for the manufacture of various kinds of polishes, chiefly used for wood and leather. It is an ingredient of waterproof cements for leather, rubber, glass, metals and other waterproof compositions, and is used in the manufacture of patent leather. It is a raw material from which are made terpineol, which is much used as a synthetic lilac perfume, terpin hydrate, used for medicinal preparations, and isoprene, from which synthetic rubber may be made. It is also the raw material for producing synthetic camphor and, indirectly, celluloid. In the rubber industry turpentine is used as a solvent, and in the manufacture of cotton print goods it serves to prevent bleeding, or the running of colors. Turpentine enters into the manufacture of sealing wax and glazing putty and certain printing inks for color printing and lithography, and is used as a cleaner, in laundry glosses and washing preparations, wood stains, belting greases, crayons, and as a moth exterminator. The total quantity used for all these purposes, however, is almost negligible when compared with the amount consumed in the paint and varnish industry.—Commerce Monthly.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper

is a unique preparation and has the recommendation of leading sanitary authorities, architects, and decorators everywhere.

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

Scientists, As Well As Laymen, Showing Keen Interest In Massachusetts Astronomer's Proposal To Shoot Great Rockets To The Moon

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

In a dispatch from Worcester, Mass., the seat of Clark University, Prof. R. H. Goddard, of that institution, is quoted as hoping that someone will offer financial aid to enable him, the coming Summer, to make a long-range trial of his "moon rocket."

It appears that the Smithsonian Institute is contributing $5,000 to the expenses of his experiments, but that is by no means enough to cover the cost of an attempt to send a rocket from the earth to the moon, producing a flash on its arrival sufficiently bright to be seen from our globe by a watcher with a telescope.

I sincerely hope that some wealthy man will offer the needed money. The principle on which the rocket is designed to act is scientifically sound, and the inventor is a physicist of recognised standing. It should be said on his behalf that the idea of sending the rocket as far as the moon appears to have been simply a by-thought, his primary intention being to contrive a means of investigating the highest regions of the earth's atmosphere which are not reached by the exploratory apparatus at present in use.

But, just as the exploration of the Arctic regions owed its principal interest not only for the popular mind, but even (though not always acknowledged), for the leaders of the expeditions, to the possibility of attaining the pole, so in this case the service to meteorology possesses but a trifling lure compared with the shooting of a rocket to the moon.

WHY NOT REASONABLE?

And if there is a reasonable hope that the thing can be done, why should it not be attempted in the name of science? The proof by actual experiment that man can send a missile from the earth to the nearest other body in interplanetary space would be one of the greatest triumphs of human intelligence and skill—and who knows what it might lead to? If it led to nothing more than a record that would be read with delight and emulation through all coming history, it would justify itself.

When a boy, or a man, for that matter, finds himself unable to cross a river, he takes great satisfaction in throwing a stone across. It is an act of defiance and an expression of contempt from the unconquerable human soul addressed to the physical obstacles and limitations that hamper it.

"What's the practical use of sending a rocket to the moon?" asks somebody.

Well, what's the practical use of a child's playing? It develops him, it teaches him his powers and how to use them. It gives him mental satisfaction, which is just as important to a human being as satisfaction of the stomach. And this would be the most magnificent child's play that the world ever saw! It would be humanity's glove of defiance to the jailer gravitation.

Then, too, it would satisfy the universal instinctive love of hitting a mark. That is one of the deepest satisfactions that man enjoys. It leads to the expenditure every year, in powder turned to smoke, of a thousand times the amount of money that Professor Goddard would probably require to start his rocket on its great flight. Consider the thrill of pleasure with which you see your arrow strike straight into the center of the bullseye, or your 22-caliber bullet bring down a squirrel out of a tall tree.

Then think of seeing a rocket, after travelling more than two hundred thousand miles, strike a flash on the ribs of the moon. If it cost a hundred thousand dollars to send that rocket, would you really call it a waste of money, when remember the billions that are thrown away for purposes that every rule of logic and every principle of morality condemns?

6,000 FEET PER SECOND

The satisfaction of intellectual curiousity alone would justify the attempt. Intelligent curiosity by awakening the imagination and the inventive powers is the prime mover in man's advancement. If it were once an established fact that we could send an object to the moon by an ingenious application of the mechanical principle of the reaction of force, no one can say to what the prestige of so eminent an achievement might not lead us on.

Many persons seem to be puzzled to understand how the rocket could continue to be driven by the explosion of its successive charges of smokeless powder after getting above the limits of the terrestrial atmosphere.

In fact there would be no difficulty arising from the lack of an atmosphere. The reaction of the ejected gases would drive the rocket outside as it does inside the atmosphere. Professor Goddard is quoted as saying that it would require an initial mass charge of 6,436 pounds to send the apparatus as far as the moon, the charge being divided into many portions exploding one after another. The calculated speed would be 6,000 to 7,000 feet per second, which would carry the rocket to the moon in from 50 to 60 hours.

Auction Bridge -:- By R. F. Foster

While the double, used conventionally, is a good thing in its proper place, there seems to be a growing tendency to make it work overtime and to ask the partner to pick out a declaration when the doubler could do it just as well himself.

There are two or three things to be taken into account when considering a double. One of the most important is the suit that the partner is likely to call. Cautious players avoid doubling on hands that are short in one suit, for fear the partner may be long in it, and then it may be necessary to deny it, for fear he might have only about nine high. In such cases the doubler might better have bid the suit he runs to in the first place.

While the principal object in doubling is undoubtedly to build up a contract that promises a fair chance for game, it may also be used as a pusher, so that even if the takeout of the double is not promising, so far as going game is concerned, it may induce the original bidders to go a bit too far with their own contract. In such cases nothing has been lost by doubling.

The typical hand for a double when a suit is bid, is two honors in each of the three other suits, none of which are more than four cards. If there is a five-card suit in the hand, the double is an alternative to calling it. So fond are some players of the double that they will never call these five-card suits, even if they are hearts or spades, but take a gamble on the partner calling them in answer to the double. This is hoping that there will be nine cards of the suit between the two hands, when eight would be quite enough under ordinary circumstances. If the partner calls some other suit, there is no way to find out if he could have supported the five-card suit except to bid it, which might just as well have been done in the first place.

Here is a deal that was played in a duplicate game which shows how game may be missed by abusing the double:

	H J 10 8 4 2 C 7 2 D Q J 8 2 S J 10
H — C K Q 6 5 D A K 9 3 S K 9 8 3 2	Y A B Z	H 7 5 3 C A J 8 3 D 7 5 4 S Q 7 5
	H A K Q 9 6 C 10 9 4 D 10 6 S A 6 4

Z dealt and bid a heart. Instead of bidding a spade, which his cards abundantly justified, A doubled the heart at three tables, and Y passed, to see what B had to say. Of course, B called the clubs, and Z went to two hearts. To shift to spades now would seem to deny the clubs, so A goes to three clubs, hoping that if he did not hold and win the game it might push Y and Z too far with their hearts.

Y did not go any further. His trumps are good for nothing, as he has no short suit and no outside tricks. His partner's rebid shows an outside trick somewhere, but it is doubtful where.

B could not quite reach game in clubs, although he got within a trick of it, making four-odd. This was because he did not play the hand as well as he might have done.

Z led a heart and dummy trumped. To ruff another heart B put himself in with a trump and dummy trumped with the queen. Being unable to get in again to give dummy a third ruff without exhausting dummy's trumps, B led three rounds of diamonds. Of course, Y led the trump the moment he got in, and B had to let the king win or Z would have won a trick with the nine. Now, two of Z's aces save the game.

Had B left the heart ruff alone and started the spades Z would have had to lead something, and no matter what it was B would be in and would either have three trumps left, winning the third round with the king and making all the spades, or A would have been able to exhaust the trumps if B was forced a second time, and could then have led a spade, making a little slam in either case.

The players who did not double on A's cards, but called the spade, had no trouble in winning the game, even after being forced on the first trick and again on the third. A had trumps enough left to exhaust both Y and Z, making four clubs and two diamonds, but having to lose two diamonds at the end.

The hand contains a useful lesson in the play. There are only five spades out against the two hands, three of them honors. There are six diamonds out against them, also three of them honors. The chance of making two spades was better than that of making one diamond by establishing the suit.

Japs To Abandon Tsingtao Depot

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 9.—The Japanese Naval Supply Depot at Tsingtao, which has been in existence since the Japanese occupied the city in 1914, was closed for good on the first of this month. All the naval supplies now stored at Tsingtao will be shipped back to Japan, and the naval staff at the Depot, consisting of a small group of officers and men under the command of a captain in the Imperial Japanese Navy, will likewise return to their native country.

Simultaneous with the closing of the Tsingtao Naval Depot is the dismantling of the Japanese naval wireless station at Tsingtao, it being the announced intention of the Japanese Government to no longer make use of Tsingtao for naval purposes.

Grafters Ousted Yellow River Behaves

(China Press Correspondence)

Pingtu, Shantung, April 5.—Your correspondent has just returned from the Famine section in Chi-yang country, Shantung, 30 English miles north of Tsinan and near the Yellow River-China's Sorrow. There has not been an over flow of this river for several years—the people of that section say that there has not been one overflow since the lucrative office looking after the River was closed with the coming in of the Republic. As there is no money in sight there is no reason to break the Levee.

The North Baptist Mission has had several Missionaries on the famine field. Drs. Glass and Bryan of Hwanghsien. Rev. Leonard of Pingtu, Dr. Hearn Of Laiyang, Rev. Rinell of Kiaochow, Rev. Leander of Kaomi and Rev. Lowe of Tsinan Laichow, Revs. Bryan and Sears of Besides three of our Chinese Pastors over a dozen of our trained helpers are also giving all their time.

Opium Planted At Point Of Bayonets

(China Press Correspondence)

Pinchow, Shensi, April 9.—The opium situation is becoming quite critical in these parts since the militarists in power here are not only permitting and encouraging the planting of opium but are using force to get the people to plant.

It is a fact that the man at the head of several divisions in this district and other districts adjoining has given out a demand to the gentry of the town for a "Ching" of ground of the best soil in the vicinity of the city and even outside of the city wall for the planting of opium. The protests of the gentry and the people and of the mandarin have availed nothing, so that in the last few days soldiers have got farmers from other places, to come and plow up the promising wheat and oil crops.

Peking-Tientsin Air Mail Service Starts Next Month

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, April 9.—The Chinese Bureau of Aeronautics announces that its passenger and mail service from Peking to Tientsin will begin sometime next month, after which extension of the service to Shanghai will be made as soon as possible. While the price of a passenger's ticket to Shanghai from the capital will be $200, the actual cost to the Bureau of transporting a passenger by air to Shanghai will be $600. These figures are based on the Bureau's estimate that the cost of operating an aeroplane from Peking to Shanghai, with its maximum quota of ten passengers, will be $6,000, or $600 per passenger, which includes general overhead expenses, gasoline, repairs and depreciation. The Bureau hopes to make up much, if not all of the loss by its mail service. The present operating expenses of the Bureau of Aeronautics are $100,000 per month, and not $130,000, as has been frequently stated in the vernacular press.

Directed by Victor L. Schertzinger.

It is the naturalness of Chas Ray that makes him so convincing and pleasing. In this old fashioned love story he is shown to even greater advantage than in his late success, "The Son of his Father."

THRILLING FASCINATING, GRIPPING, EXCITING— A BIG SENSATION!

"ISOBEL" or THE TRAIL'S END" ranks as one of the most remarkable film productions of the year.

Surely and beyond a single doubt it is the best story of the North-west ever told on the screen.

CRITICS AGREE THAT "ISOBEL" HAS A POWER, A GRIP, A SPIRITUAL NOTE AND LIFE-LIKE DIMENSIONS WHICH WILL BE CAUGHT BY THE SPECTATOR, SO MUCH SO, THAT ONE FORGETS THE ENVIRONMENT AND IS TRULY TRANSPORTED TO THE HUDSON BAY ITSELF.

AS GRIPPING AS ITS STORY WHICH BUILDS EVENLY AND SURELY TO POWERFUL CLIMAXES—CLIMAXES WHICH CONTAIN TWISTS AND SURPRISES AND KEEP ONE GUESSING AT THE OUTCOME — ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL STORIES EVER FILMED.

STRIKING SITUATIONS, RATTLING ACTION, SUSPENSE AND UNEXPECTED CLIMAX.

A screen play adapted from a James Oliver Curwood story has never failed to be rich in entertainment value.

The photoplay is filled with exciting action, manly combats and suspense. The plot oddly twists, but the denouement is logical and convincing.
